

HOUSE OF COMMONS IN WILD UPROAR

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
London, July 27.—Disorder became so great in the house of commons this afternoon that the sitting had to be suspended.
The tumult was precipitated by Lawrence Ginnel, an Irish Nationalist member, who started the uproar by shouting criticism of the government over its conduct in the Irish situation.
Ginnel was ordered to withdraw from the chamber for disorderly conduct and was ordered suspended from service in the house, but refused to leave.
Pandemonium followed in which the speaker could not make himself heard.
It was then that the sitting was suspended.
During the suspension the sergeant at arms, accompanied by four attendants, approached Ginnel with the evident object of ejecting him by force.
At this juncture A. A. Lynch, another Irish Nationalist, and others intervened and after some argument persuaded Ginnel to leave peacefully. The session was then resumed.

KRAUS HELD FOR GRAND JURY

Cornelius Krause, who was arrested by Sheriff Shultis Monday night on a charge of burglary in the third degree, in entering buildings of Superintendent John H. Harrison of the Kingston City Water Department, and stealing twenty-six chickens, was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Shultis at Woodstock Wednesday afternoon. He waived examination and was committed to jail to await the action of the grand jury.
Orby Purdy and Lewis Harrison, who were arrested by Under Sheriff Scott D. Hovebeck near East Windham Wednesday afternoon, were brought to jail late in the afternoon and were taken to Woodstock for arraignment on a similar charge today. They are alleged to have been with Kraus when he stole Superintendent Harrison's chickens, as well as other chickens which were taken the same night, as well as the wagon of Robert J. Charlton of Sawkill. The wheels which were taken from the wagon of sawmill Sunday night were taken in an effort to find one which would fit Kraus's wagon after one of its wheels had been broken in traveling over the rough road. None of the wheels fitted the Kraus wagon, which resulted in Charlton's wagon being impressed into service.

LAWN PARTY FOR RED CROSS FUNDS

Among the other pleasant features of the lawn party to be held by the Federation of Women's Clubs on the old Kingston Academy grounds Friday evening, for the benefit of the two Red Cross relief funds, will be music by several members of the Kingston Symphony Orchestra, providing, of course, that the weather is not too damp to permit the use of string instruments.
A very pleasing program is being arranged, which will surely and greatly to the enjoyment of the evening. Again, thanks to the Kingston Gas and Electric Company, the grounds will be lighted by electricity, and tables and chairs will be arranged for the comfort of those attending. In addition to the ice cream and home made cake which will be for sale, Mrs. Mcagher, chairman of the Military Relief Committee, will be in charge of a cigar and punch booth, and will be assisted by Miss Anne Heaver and Miss Anna O'Marra. The hours will be as last week, from 7 to 10 in the evening. The money received from this affair will be divided equally between the Civilian Relief, caring for the necessities of the unemployed families of the Company, and the Military Relief, which provides a fund for the needs of the soldiers themselves. It is hoped that this party will prove every bit as successful as the one held downtown last Friday evening.

Goodbye to Those Ants.
A Kingston housekeeper who has suffered seriously in the past from the invasion of ants, little and big red and black, has found the following preparation absolutely exterminating to the pests: Wet up a sufficient amount of salaratus with kerosene and paint about the places where the ants are found. They will suddenly disappear and do not return.

VERBAL BOUQUETS FOR POLICE CHIEFS

Everybody Had a Good Word For Them And Their Work at the Banquet at the Stuyvesant Wednesday Evening.
Chief of police came into their own Wednesday night when speakers at their banquet at the Stuyvesant, the big social feature of the annual convention now concluding its sessions, told the heads of the municipal departments of public safety throughout the state that they constituted probably the most conserving factor for good in our civic life today, that their influence while negative in character was most successful in the preventive results attained and that the chiefs themselves are a fine lot of fellows, the latter fact being already conceded by citizens of Kingston who have become acquainted with the convention delegates.
All of the above truths were eloquently set forth by none other than Secretary of State Francis M. Hugo, admittedly the best known and most popular of state officials having business with the police chiefs. Supreme Court Justice G. D. B. Hasbrouck, who tossed several verbal bouquets to the police chiefs, and the flowers of speech that he handed to the chiefs, County Judge James Jenkins, who praised police participation in the parole system, and Senator Charles W. Walton, who contributed to the hospitable atmosphere with words of welcome. Judge A. T. Clearwater was unable to be present and sent a letter of regret. Judge William D. Cunningham, listed as a speaker, was also unavoidably detained. Mayor Palmer Canfield, Jr., presided as toastmaster and was in fine form.

Big Guns Cut Loose.
Following the most satisfactory service of an elaborate menu, the big guns of the forensic battery partially concealed behind the flower-bedecked speakers' table were trained upon an expectant audience of whom a score were ladies. Mayor Canfield presented Secretary Hugo as one of the best secretaries of state the Empire state ever knew and the latter gracefully countered with a brief eulogy of Kingston and its progressiveness, the fame of Senator Walton's statesmanship and its distinction of being the home of that widely known jurist, Judge Hasbrouck.
"And that man who is modestly incarnate, Phil Eiding, who would not join with us tonight," said the speaker, "is another of your well known men, while Judge Clearwater also has rendered the greater credit upon his home city of Kingston and county of Ulster. Regardless of political partisanship, I must also pay a tribute to another of your county jurists in whom not only the county of Ulster but the entire county takes pride, I refer to a former nominee for president, Judge Alton B. Parker of Esopus."

Praise For Singleton.
"Another reason why I am glad to be here is to do honor to your president, Chief Singleton, of Watertown, whom I appointed to that office during my term as mayor. And let me say to you gentlemen, the confidence that I reposed in him then the chief has more than retained in his official capacity. I am glad to know that you too have appreciated his sterling qualities.
"I believe in an efficient police department. It was my good fortune during my eight years as executive to come in contact with the police and fire department of my city and, gentlemen, I know of no more loyal crowd of men who reflect more credit upon their home cities than the police and fire departments of any community.
"Particularly is the responsibility of the police department a great responsibility and especially does this responsibility rest upon the head of the department. The policeman must not only be the friend of everybody but also must be the guardian of the district wherein he serves, the enforcer of the rules and order."

Cities Get Something More.
Continuing, the secretary gave some sidelights upon the difficulties incident to the growth of auto traffic and the variety of municipal legislation thereon. In 1901, he said, there were 954 automobiles registered within this state where in 1915 there were 280,000 machines licensed and fees aggregating $2,300,000 paid over by their owners. The speaker had been, he stated, for the state to take all this money and leave the responsibility for enforcing the law up to the police. Now under the Brown bill, this has been changed to benefit the communities more as the counties now get a share of these revenues.
"I believe in uniform regulation of all autoists within the state of New York," was one declaration by the speaker which brought forth applause and he continued to point out the difficulties attached to the police as well as the confusion of motorists due to the present conflicting rules for traffic in various localities.

State Leads the World.
From the growth in the number of automobiles, the speaker deduced a growth in the wealth of citizens of the state and in the economic importance of the state itself. He spoke of the duties of his department of whose extent he said the average person had little idea. The largest automobile license bureau in the world and the largest corporation bureau in the world were two features of its business to which he pointed, stating that there were more corporations chartered in New York annually than in any eight other states of the union. The average was sixty a day, he said, and these with the licensing of 315,000 automobiles in 1915 showed unmistakably the importance of New York state and the fact that it was retaining its place at the head of the other states as worthy of a state with ten millions of people, containing nearly one-tenth of the total population of the country within its boundaries.

"First in population, in scenic beauties," said the secretary, "I tell you that the intelligence and class of citizens of which New York boasts may well make the heart of every citizen quicken with pride."

Conservate State Assets.
Yet it is not this economic importance, supremacy in agriculture, as a money market that makes the state great, he declared, but rather the character of its citizenry and especially its boys and girls, the potential citizens of the state to come over whose destinies and usefulness the police wielded no small influence. In conclusion, he praised the police departments of the state for the type of men who are at the heads of them today and the work they are doing.
"I pay my respects to the chiefs of police," said Mr. Hugo, "not merely for their work as executives but for their loyalty, their patriotism and self-respect without which no man can be of any account to anything. As a force in the life of every community they are doing an important work and doing it well. I desire to personally express my deep appreciation of that fact to you all tonight."

In conclusion, the speaker paraphrased Roscoe Conkling's famous words to his home city of Ulster and county of Oneida, styling Ulster as the best county of the best state in the Union and Kingston the best city of them all. The secretary was loudly applauded at his conclusion.

Senator Walton's Tribute.
Senator Charles W. Walton was the next speaker and he had words of warm praise for the part of the police in the fabric of society as constituted today. He declared that much of the credit given communities as law-abiding was due to the careful, efficient police departments whose activities, alike in their treatment of offenders, resulted in fewer infractions of the law because of the wholesome feeling of respect thus engendered among would-be evildoers.

Judge Jenkins spoke for the parole law in whose operation he has long been an active factor and he declared it "a most excellent system for the reformation of men. Every criminal case," he said, "should be dealt with on its individual merits and this fact is realized by the chiefs of police as well as by the bench in dealing with crime problems of today."

Police Aid Paroles Plan.
"Instead of having a convict as under the old scheme, under the parole system with the help of the police, you may have a useful member of society. In the working out of parole problems in police administration, there is often a hard and sordid side to them but in this sense of humor probably helps more than anything else."
After congratulating the police chiefs upon the progress of the parole system and the attitude of many prominent members toward the same, the speaker concluded with a tribute to the ladies.
The speechmaking was concluded by Judge Hasbrouck in what was probably one of the most brilliant and polished after dinner addresses that Kingston has heard in some time. The judge at the outset paid his respects to the mayor styling him "one of the little giants of the city and the occasion, one of the most efficient mayors that Kingston has ever known."

Corporate Polio-mythitis.
Speaking of the corporations born at the rate of sixty a day at Secretary Hugo's office, the judge remarked that most of them must suffer from infant paralysis and regretted that artificial means had not been provided for prolongation of the lives of many of these corporate children of the state. He referred to the historical features of Kingston and to the fact of its having been the first capital of the state.
"I cannot tell," he said, "to what outrageous fortune we owe the blame for the city not continuing in that capacity."

As for the police chiefs, the speaker declared that he could not speak so closely as some of the preceding speakers as all of his life he had made a struggle to keep as far away from them as he could. He took occasion, however, to congratulate them upon having the accomplished secretary of state as one of their speakers and paid a glowing tribute to the personal character, integrity and worth of the men who make up the heads of the police departments through the state.

Are Men of Character.
"You have the responsibility," he stated, "of making and keeping the morale of the men who are under you and to do that successfully a chief must be a man of character, integrity and fixed probity. Without those qualities there is no way of keeping a department up to that standard of probity which the public demands."
Judge Hasbrouck recounted some experiences of the late Christopher C. James and gave some sidelights on criminology from the viewpoints of a lay student. The judge was in expressed their appreciation of his finished scholarly effort with prolonged handclapping.

Secretary Hugo also arose to express his pleasure at hearing Judge Hasbrouck and amid a roar to the chiefs, the banquet was adjourned. The chiefs pronounced the affair one of the most successful in the history of their organization.

Judge Clearwater's Letter.
The following letter was read at the banquet:

The Honorable Palmer Canfield, Jr., Mayor of the City of Kingston, and to J. Allan Wood, Esq., Chief of Police:
Gentlemen—Profoundly to my regret, an imperative engagement at Albany this evening will prevent me from attending the dinner to the members of the Chiefs of Police Association to which you were good enough to invite me.

Will you kindly convey to the members of the association the assurance of my warmest regards, for in my twenty-five years' official connection with the administration of justice as district attorney, judge and member of the state probation commission, I have found the chiefs of police of the state invaluable and unfailing aids in the discharge of official duties.
With kindest regards, I am, as ever, very sincerely yours.
(Signed) A. T. CLEARWATER.

GLINTS FROM THE SHIELDS

A uniform coat, covered with patents, is being exhibited before the police chiefs at city hall by L. L. Inman of Beacon. By ingenious pleas the garment permits freedom of movement, whether the copper be swatting a fly or waving a detaining arm at street traffic.
"If they'd paint one arm red and the other green, a traffic officer would be a regular human semaphore," commented "Dusty Jim" Long, the terror of evil-doers of Little Falls and vicinity.

Sheriff Shultis qualified as a police chief for the banquet and assisted in the entertainment. The sheriff is a useful member in every gathering whether in the line of duty or on the social side.
Many of the chiefs liked the Ashokan reservoir ride so much that they desired to go again and this morning saw several parties of sightseers early abroad in automobiles.

Police chiefs are great judges of men. Two big boxes of cigars, wide open, stayed in the press table all during the opening session. Maybe Chief Wood was aware of the fact that neither of the scribes smoked.

"The two Mambos," the conspicuous figures in the gathering, "J. T." being the chief of police of Herkimer and Martin Mahon, ex-chief of Johnstown and at present one of the New York Central railroad detective force. While not related, the two Mambos are usually together. Chief Mahon of Herkimer is a blue-eyed, florid faced official, whose chief dislikes are book agents and fast automobilism.

Speaking of blue eyes, nearly two-thirds of the chiefs have eyes of that color in a variety of shades and as sharp as gimlets. To stand in front of that audience and feel those eyes drilling is like the treatment credited to third degree, that pleasant bit of fiction so long cherished about police methods.

No record of the convention would be complete without a mention of Chief G. O. Bush of Tuxedo Park, the fix of the horse thieves along the state border and a sleuth of action. Recently a Sunday newspaper down the river credited Chief Bush with the capture of his 28th horse thief which was accomplished by the chief "disguising himself as a sorrel nag and browsing at the roadside until the thief drove by with his equine loot and was apprehended by the said sorrel, which rose in the pasture and used a sawed off shotgun as a pointer." Chief Bush says this story is an unequalled falsehood but he caught the thief and gives a horse laugh himself every time he thinks of the incident.

Only recently Chief Bush was called to the telephone by the Patterson, N. J., police, who told him of a daring theft of an automobile near there by a couple of people who had been operating a hold-up game on chauffeurs. The car was being described to the chief when suddenly one answering the description dashed up headed up the pike. The chief dropped the receiver, jumped into his own trusty machine, grabbing a shotgun as he did so and raced after the speeding auto. After a long chase he got abreast of the fleeing machine, fired a charge of buckshot across its bows and arrested the two occupants who are now awaiting grand jury action in Patterson jail. Some chief, eh?

EPIDEMIC SHOWS NO ABATEMENT

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, July 27.—Thirty-one deaths occurred from infantile paralysis and 151 new cases developed during the 24 hours that ended at 10 a. m. today. Yesterday's figures showed 35 deaths and 162 cases. The totals to date for the epidemic are: Deaths, 713; cases, 3,411.

There are now 1,657 cases in the hospitals. As a result of the steady strides of the disease the health officials are seriously considering the question of not reopening the schools in September. Dr. Billings, in charge of the paralysis campaign in Brooklyn, said today that if the epidemic were not under control by that time the schools would be excluded unless the board of education excludes from homes known to be infected.

TWO YEARS OF WAR COST 55 BILLIONS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, July 27.—On August 1, the second anniversary of the start of the great war, the direct cost to all the belligerents will have reached $55,000,000,000.
This is the consensus of financial opinion here. Estimates six months ago were slightly lower, but the daily cost has mounted steadily and the figures given are considered conservative.
The direct cost does not include the losses by destruction of property, by the disorganization of civilian industry, by the death and crippling of workers and by enervating human sickness and misery.
The money spent is apportioned approximately as follows:
Great Britain (including colonies) $13,000,000,000
Belgium (mostly advanced by allies) 500,000,000
France 5,500,000,000
Russia 11,500,000,000
Serbia 350,000,000
Italy 2,500,000,000
Portugal 100,000,000
Montenegro 10,000,000
Japan (slight)

Total, Entente Allies $36,950,000,000
Germany 12,000,000,000
Austria-Hungary 6,000,000,000
Bulgaria 150,000,000
Turkey 600,000,000
Total Central Powers $18,750,000,000
Grand total $55,700,000,000
The war is now costing all belligerents more than $110,000,000 a day. This is divided among the principal nations as follows: Great Britain, $30,000,000 (official figures, $18,000,000); France, $17,000,000; Russia, $18,000,000; Italy, $8,500,000; Germany, $23,000,000 and Austria-Hungary, $12,000,000, the lesser powers making up the balance.

Great Britain is the only power which is paying part of the capital cost of the war out of current income. Germany is compounding her debt by not taking in taxes enough to cover all her interest charges.
The financial situation of both sides is fairly good. No country has yet resorted to the issue of fiat currency, which the north did in the civil war and which the recent example of Mexico proves can support continuous fighting for many years. The same cannot be said for the economic situation. Germany and her allies are plainly in distress in many ways. Few or none have died of actual hunger, but the vitality of many non-combatants is lowered by lack of proper food. There is a great scarcity of rubber, copper, high grade iron, material for warm clothing and an almost absolute lack of strictly exotic products, such as tea, coffee and cocoa.

Mass feeding has been adopted by the Teuton cities. Everybody is busy, everybody eats and exists somehow, but many women and children will be cold this winter for lack of proper clothing and unless the crops this summer are good, the pinch of hunger will grow severe next spring.

In Great Britain the common people have never been so prosperous. The cost of living has advanced less than half, but wages have increased still more and the demand for labor, both by the government and by private enterprises is insatiable.
France, too, has largely recovered from the financial shock, though activity is not on such a great scale as in England. In Russia private business is not good, but owing to the suppression of vodka the mujik is happier today and is saving several times as much money as ever before.

Italy is suffering from a dearth of coal, which has closed most of her factories.

Some of the neutral countries of Europe, especially Denmark, Sweden and Norway, are becoming unpleasant from war business. In Holland the upper classes have made money while there have recently been food riots by the lower classes.
Switzerland is harassed continually by both sides to the quarrel. Germany demands to be allowed to purchase and export goods freely from Swiss towns and the allies threatening to withhold food and other supplies if Germany is provisioned by her mountain neighbor.
Japan, the United States, Cuba and some of the South American countries were never so prosperous before in their history, due to the stimulus of war orders, which has galvanized domestic business as well.

KINGSTON TRUST CO. SEEKS A CHARTER

Representatives of Existing Banks Appear in Opposition on Ground That City Has Enough Banks—Mr. Connelly Says It Needs Another.
By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Albany, July 27.—(Special.)—A hearing on the application of the Kingston Trust Company for a charter under which to do business at some point near the West Shore Railway in the city of Kingston, was held this morning before Superintendent Eugene Lamb Richards, of the State Banking Department, at which a large number of Kingston people appeared in favor of or to oppose the application.
Those who appeared in favor of the application were Arthur C. Connelly, Gilbert W. Kennedy, R. Leighton, Anthony Gentile, George J. Schryver, John Willard, William O'Reilly, Albert H. Cook, William J. Byrne and Joseph Kriger.
The opposition was represented by Dr. E. H. Loughran, president, John B. Alliger, treasurer, and Philip Eiding, attorney of the Ulster County Savings Institution, with Howard Chipp of counsel; Delaney N. Mathews, president, and William D. Brinnier, attorney for the State of New York National Bank; F. J. R. Clarke, president, and Judge Betts, attorney for the Ulster County National Bank; Charles Tappan, treasurer, and Judge Betts, attorney, for the Kingston Savings Bank; Virgil B. Van Wageningen, for the Kingston National Bank; Edward Gaykaddal, president, and A. T. Clearwater, attorney, for the First National Bank of Rondout, and A. T. Clearwater, as attorney for the Rondout Savings Bank. The Rondout National Bank did not appear.

Mr. Connelly, who presented the argument for the applicants, said that Kingston is the only city of its size in the state that has no trust company, and the only reason given by the opposition to this application is the elusive one that there are now enough banks in the city—but enough for who? In 1906 Kingston, with a population of 11,500 in its two villages with unoccupied lands between, had five national banks, and three savings banks. The West Shore Railroad was constructed in 1884 and resulted in building up the central part of the city, but banking conditions remain the same now as in 1865, with a population of 47,000. Only one national bank pays interest on deposits, and it requires three months minimum. People would benefit by the advent of a trust company and would receive more attractive inducements for deposits, such as other people enjoy. Of ten cities about the same size as Kingston, only three—Poughkeepsie, Newburgh and Waterbury—show a greater per capita wealth based on bank deposits, and that is based on the amount of bank deposits. Kingston has sufficient wealth to justify it having a trust company.

To the funds, said Mr. Connelly, should be added the sum diverted to trust companies in Poughkeepsie, Newburgh and other cities, amounting to $75,000 in Poughkeepsie and an equal amount elsewhere. Figures show that trust companies do not insure banks. With a population of 27,000 Kingston has increased its savings bank deposits in 25 years from $3,500,000 to $13,000,000 and the banks have a surplus of $814,000, showing that the savings banks do not need protection. Even directors in existing banks have without solicitation offered to subscribe for stock in the proposed trust company. As an indication of the strong desire to establish the trust company Mr. Connelly cited an unsolicited offer received from a man willing to subscribe $25,000 of its stock. Mr. Connelly asserted that the Kingston and Rondout banks exchange only once a week and said this indicated that new blood was needed in the business.

Judge Betts, in opposition, presented affidavits showing that Kingston has two business centers and that there are less than a mile away from that portion of the city in which it is proposed to establish a new bank. He said there was now too much bank capital in Kingston. The banks were unable to loan all of their available funds locally and had to go outside. In addition to the banks the city had two loan associations and a postal savings bank. The savings banks, at least, he said, were entitled to protection.

Superintendent Richards said that his investigator had been furnished by the Kingston Chamber of Commerce with a statement of employment in Kingston showing 2,770 persons employed in the central portion of the city, 1,951 in Rondout and 81 in Kingston. The central zone extends from Albany avenue to Chester street. The tremendous element to be considered, the superintendent said, was the fact that with a capital, surplus and undivided profits of $1,499,999 the Kingston banks had deposits of $2,900,000. This was a funny situation.

Mr. Van Wageningen said it was due to the fact that there was nobody to borrow who would give good security.

Judge Clearwater, Mr. Brinnier, Mr. Chipp and Mr. Van Wageningen made arguments in opposition to granting the application for a charter.

Superintendent Richards said if he authorized the establishing of the trust company it would be in such a way that the savings banks would not be affected, at least during the administration.

Decision was reserved.

HOUSE OF COMMONS VERBAL BOUQUETS IN WILD UPROAR FOR POLICE CHIEFS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
London, July 27.—Disorder became so great in the house of commons this afternoon that the sitting had to be suspended.

The tumult was precipitated by Lawrence Ginnel, an Irish nationalist member, who started the uproar by shouting criticism of the government over its conduct in the Irish situation.

Ginnel was ordered to withdraw from the chamber for disorderly conduct and was ordered suspended from service in the house, but refused to leave.

Pandemonium followed in which the speaker could not make himself heard.

It was then that the sitting was suspended.

During the suspension the sergeant at arms, accompanied by four attendants, approached Ginnel with the evident object of ejecting him by force.

At this juncture A. A. Lynch, another Irish nationalist, and others intervened and after some argument persuaded Ginnel to leave peacefully. The session was then resumed.

KRAUS HELD FOR GRAND JURY

Cornelius Krause, who was arrested by Sheriff Shultis Monday night on a charge of burglary in the third degree, in entering buildings of Superintendent John H. Harrison of the Kingston City Water Department, and stealing twenty-six chickens, was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Shultis at Woodstock Wednesday afternoon. He waived examination and was committed to jail to await the action of the grand jury.

Olby Purdy and Lewis Harrison, who were arrested by Under Sheriff Scott D. Hürbeck near East Windham Wednesday afternoon, were brought to jail late in the afternoon and were taken to Woodstock for arraignment on a similar charge to-day. They are alleged to have been with Kraus when he stole Superintendent Harrison's chickens, as well as other chickens which were taken the same night, as well as the wagon of Robert J. Charlton of Sawkill. The wheels which were taken from the wagon of Sawkill Sunday night were taken in an effort to find one which would fit Kraus's wagon after one of its wheels had been broken in traveling over the rough road. None of the wheels fitted the Kraus wagon, which resulted in Charlton's wagon being impressed into service.

LAWN PARTY FOR RED CROSS FUNDS

Among the other pleasant features of the lawn party to be held by the Federation of Women's Clubs on the old Kingston Academy grounds Friday evening, for the benefit of the two Red Cross relief funds, will be music by several members of the Kingston Symphony Orchestra, providing, of course, that the weather is not too damp to permit the use of string instruments. A very pleasing program is being arranged, which will surely add greatly to the enjoyment of the evening. Again, thanks to the Kingston Gas and Electric Company, the grounds will be lighted by electricity, and tables and chairs will be arranged for the comfort of those attending. In addition to the ice cream and home made cake which will be for sale, Mrs. Meagher, chairman of the Military Relief Committee, will be in charge of a cigar and punch booth, and will be assisted by Miss Anne Heaney and Miss Anna O'Marra. The hours will be as last week, from 7 to 10 in the evening. The money received from this affair will be divided equally between the Civilian Relief, caring for the necessities of the unemployed families of the Company men, and the Military Relief, which provides a fund for the needs of the soldiers themselves. It is hoped that this party will prove every bit as successful as the one held downtown last Friday evening.

Goodbye to Those Ants.

A Kingston housekeeper who has suffered seriously in the past from the invasion of ants, little and big red and black, has found the following preparation absolutely exterminating to the pests: Wet up a sufficient amount of salaratus with kerosene and paint about the places where the ants are found. They will suddenly disappear and do not return.

Summer Boys' Dance Postponed.

Owing to the disagreeable weather on Wednesday evening the summer dance and festival of the "Summer Boys" which was to have been held at Evergreen Park, had to be postponed. The dance will be held on Friday evening of this week. McLean's orchestra will furnish the music for dancing. A good time is assured to all who are in attendance.

In conclusion, the speaker paraphrased Roscoe Conkling's famous words to his home city of Utica and county of Oneida, styling Ulster as the best county of the best state in the Union and Kingston the best city of them all. The secretary was loudly applauded at his conclusion.

Senator Walton's Tribute.

Senator Charles W. Walton was the next speaker and he had words of warm praise for the part of the police in the fabric of society as constituted today. He declared that much of the credit given communities as law-abiding was due to the careful, efficient police departments whose activities, alike in their treatment of offenders, resulted in fewer infractions of the law because of the wholesome feeling of respect thus engendered among would-be evildoers.

Judge Jenkins spoke for the parole law in whose operation he has long been an active factor and he declared it "a most excellent system for the regeneration of men. Every criminal case," he said, "should be dealt with on its individual merits and this fact is realized by the chiefs of police as well as by the bench in dealing with crime problems of today."

Police Aid Paroles Plan.

"Instead of having a convict as under the old scheme, under the parole system with the help of the police, you may have a useful member of society. In the working out of parole problems in police administration, there is often a hard and sordid side to them but in this sense of humor probably helps more than anything else."

After congratulating the police chiefs upon the progress of the parole system and the attitude of many prominent members toward the same, the speaker concluded with a tribute to the ladies.

The speechmaking was concluded by Judge Hasbrouck in what was probably one of the most brilliant and polished after dinner addresses that Kingston has heard in some time. The judge at the outset paid his respects to the mayor styling him "one of the little giants of the city and the occasion, one of the most efficient mayors that Kingston has ever known."

Corporate Followed.

Speaking of the corporations born at the rate of sixty a day at Secretary Hugo's office, the judge remarked that most of them must suffer from infant paralysis and regretted that artificial means had not been provided for prolongation of the lives of many of these corporate children of the state. He referred to the historical features of Kingston and to the fact of its having been the first capital of the state.

for the city not continuing in that capacity."

As for the police chiefs, the speaker declared that he could not speak so closely as some of the preceding speakers as all of his life he had made a struggle to keep as far away from them as he could. He took occasion, however, to congratulate them upon having the accomplished secretary of state as one of their speakers and paid a glowing tribute to the personal character, integrity and worth of the men who make up the heads of the police departments through the state.

Are Men of Character.

"You have the responsibility," he stated, "of making and keeping the morale of the men who are under you and to do that successfully a chief must be a man of character, integrity and fixed probity. Without those qualities there is no way of keeping a department up to that standard of probity which the public demands."

Judge Hasbrouck recounted some experiences of the late Christopher C. James and gave some sidelights on criminology from the viewpoints of a lay student. The judge was in most happy mood and his hearers expressed their appreciation of his finished, scholarly effort with prolonged handclapping.

Secretary Hugo also arose to express his pleasure at hearing Judge Hasbrouck and said a word to the chiefs, the banquet was adjourned. The chiefs pronounced the affair one of the most successful in the history of their organization.

Judge Clearwater's Letter.

The following letter was read at the banquet:

The Honorable Palmer Canfield, Jr., Mayor of the City of Kingston, and to J. Allan Wood, Esq., Chief of Police:

Gentlemen—Profoundly to my regret, an imperative engagement at Albany this evening will prevent me from attending the dinner to the members of the Chiefs of Police Association to which you were good enough to invite me.

Will you kindly convey to the members of the association the assurance of my warmest regards, for in my twenty-five years' official connection with the administration of justice as district attorney, judge and member of the state probation commission, I have found the chiefs of police of the state invaluable and unfailing aids in the discharge of official duties.

With kindest regards, I am, as ever, very sincerely yours,
(Signed) A. T. CLEARWATER.
Kingston, July 26, 1916.

GLINTS FROM THE SHIELDS

A uniform coat, covered with patents, is being exhibited before the police chiefs at city hall by L. L. Inman of Beacon. By ingenious pleats the garment permits freedom of movement whether the copper be swatting a fly or waving a detaining arm at street traffic.

"If they'd paint one arm red and the other green, a traffic officer would be a regular human semaphore," commented "Dusty Jim" Long, the terror of evil-doers of Little Falls and vicinity.

Sheriff Shultis qualified as a police chief for the banquet and assisted in the entertainment. The sheriff is a useful member in every gathering whether in the line of duty or on the social side.

Many of the chiefs liked the Ashoka reservoir ride so much that they desired to go again and this morning saw several parties of sightseers early abroad in automobiles.

Police chiefs are great judges of men. Two big boxes of cigars, wide open, stayed on the green table all during the opening session. Maybe Chief Wood was aware of the fact that neither of the scribes smoked.

"The two Manions" the conspicuous figures in the gathering, "J. T." being the chief of police of Herkimer and Martin Manion, ex-chief of Johnstown and at present one of the New York Central railroad detective force. While not related, the two Manions are usually together. Chief Manion of Herkimer is a blue-eyed, florid faced official, whose chief dislikes are book agents and fast automobilizing.

Speaking of blue eyes, nearly two-thirds of the chiefs have eyes of that color in a variety of shades and as sharp as gimlets. To stand in front of that audience and feel those eyes drilling is like the treatment credited to third degree, that pleasant bit of fiction so long cherished about police methods.

No record of the convention would be complete without a mention of Chief G. O. Bush of Tuxedo Park, the jinx of the horse thieves along the state border and a sleuth of action. Recently a Sunday newspaper down the river credited Chief Bush with the capture of his 25th horse thief which was accomplished by the chief "disguising himself as a sorrel nag and browsing at the roadside until the thief drove by with his equine loot and was apprehended by the said sorrel, which rose in the pasture and used a saved off shotgun as a pointer."

Only recently Chief Bush was called to the telephone by the Paterson, N. J., police, who told him of a daring theft of an automobile near there by a couple of crooks who had been operating a motor car game on chauffeurs. The car was being described to the chief when suddenly an answering description dashed up headed up the pike. The chief dropped the receiver, jumped into his own trusty machine, grabbed a shotgun as he did so and raced after the speeding auto. After a long chase he got abreast of the fleeing machine, fired a charge of buckshot across its bows and arrested the two occupants, who are now awaiting grand jury action in Paterson jail. Some chief, eh?

EPIDEMIC SHOWS NO ABATEMENT

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, July 27.—Thirty-one deaths occurred from infantile paralysis and 151 new cases developed during the 24 hours that ended at 10 a. m. today. Yesterday's figures showed 35 deaths and 167 cases. The totals to date for the epidemic are: Deaths, 713; cases, 3,411.

There are now 1,657 cases in the hospitals. As a result of the steady strides of the disease the health officials are seriously considering the question of not reopening the schools in September. Dr. Billings, in charge of the paralysis campaign in Brooklyn, said today that if the epidemic were not under control by that time the schools would be kept closed unless the board of education excludes from homes known to be infected.

ABOUT THE FOLKS.

Miss Jane Armour of Newburgh is spending a few weeks with Miss Gertrude Whalen.

Mrs. George Whipple of No. 694 Broadway, has gone to the Benedictine Sanitarium to undergo a serious operation.

Miss Janet Vrooman of Pearl street is spending the week end as the guest of a school friend in West Nyack. The house party will include other classmates.

Mrs. Richard Thomas of Albany and niece have returned home, after spending to weeks vacation as guest of Mrs. Cornelia Middagh of Locust Hill Farm, Lomontville.

Miss Helen McMahon, a graduate of the stenographic department of Spencer's Business School, has secured an excellent office position with Twilight Park Inn, Haines Falls, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. William A. Valkenburgh and daughter Kathryn of Spring street, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Whitehill of Newburgh, are motoring to Niagara Falls, stopping at different places of interest.

TWO YEARS OF WAR COST 55 BILLIONS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, July 27.—On August 1, the second anniversary of the start of the great war, the direct cost to all the belligerents will have reached $55,000,000,000.

This is the consensus of financial opinion here. Estimates six months ago were slightly lower, but the daily cost has mounted steadily and the figures given are considered conservative.

The direct cost does not include the losses by destruction of property, by the disorganization of civilian industry, by the death and crippling of workers and by enervating human sickness and misery.

The money spent is apportioned approximately as follows:

Great Britain (including colonies)	$18,000,000,000
Belgium (mostly advanced by allies)	500,000,000
France	8,500,000,000
Russia	11,500,000,000
Serbia	350,000,000
Italy	2,500,000,000
Portugal	100,000,000
Montenegro	10,000,000
Japan	(slight)

Total Entente Allies	$36,960,000,000
Germany	12,000,000,000
Austria-Hungary	6,000,000,000
Bulgaria	150,000,000
Turkey	600,000,000

Total Central Powers

Germany	$18,750,000,000
Grand total	$55,710,000,000

This was now costing all belligerents more than $110,000,000 a day. This is divided among the principal nations as follows: Great Britain, $30,000,000,000 (official figures); France, $17,000,000,000; Russia, $18,000,000,000; Italy, $8,500,000,000; Germany, $23,000,000,000 and Austria-Hungary, $12,000,000,000, the lesser powers making up the balance.

Great Britain is the only power which is paying part of the capital cost of the war out of current income. Germany is compounding her debt by not taking in taxes enough to cover all her interest charges.

The financial situation of both sides is fairly good. No country has yet resorted to the issue of fiat currency, which the north did in the civil war and which the recent example of Mexico proves can support continuous fighting for many years. The same cannot be said for the economic situation. Germany and her allies are relatively in distress in many ways. Few or none have died of actual hunger, but the vitality of many non-combatants is lowered by lack of proper food. There is a great scarcity of rubber, copper, high grade iron, material for warm clothing and an almost absolute lack of strictly exotic products, such as tea, coffee and cocoa.

Mass feeding has been adopted by the Teuton cities. Everybody is busy, everybody eats and exists somehow, but many women and children will be cold this winter for lack of proper clothing and unless the crops this summer are good, the pinch of hunger will grow severe next spring.

In Great Britain the common people have never been so prosperous. The cost of living has advanced by more than half, but wages have increased still more and the demand for labor, both by the government and by private enterprises is insatiable.

France, too, has largely recovered from the financial shock, though activity is not on such a great scale as in England. In Russia private business is not good, but owing to the suppression of vodka the maul is happier today and is saving several times as much money as ever before.

Italy is suffering from a dearth of coal, which has closed most of her factories.

Some of the neutral countries of Europe, especially Denmark, Sweden and Norway, are becoming opulent from war business. In Holland the upper classes have made money, while there have recently been food riots by the lower classes.

Switzerland is harassed continually by both sides to the quarrel, Germany demanding to be allowed to purchase and export goods freely from Swiss towns and the allies threatening to withhold food and other supplies if Germany is provisioned by her mountain neighbor.

Japan, the United States, Cuba and some of the South American countries were never so prosperous before in their history, due to the stimulus of war orders, which has galvanized domestic business as well.

ST. REMY.

St. Remy, July 26.—The young people gave Tracy Van Vleet and bride a serenade last Monday night and by the noise they made, had a good time. The ladies were treated to candies and the boys to cigars.

Miss Ruth DuBois of Kingston is the guest of Elizabeth Freer.

The wet weather is a hindrance to the farmers in gathering their harvest.

Mrs. Clarence Freer and son, Elmer, were at Palenville on Sunday as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Krom.

The Kingston City Library will be closed tomorrow and Saturday for the purpose of cleaning the building.

KINGSTON TRUST CO. SEEKS A CHARTER

Representatives of Existing Banks Appear in Opposition on Ground That City Has Enough Banks—Mr. Connelly Says It Needs Another.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Albany, July 27.—(Special).—A hearing on the application of the Kingston Trust Company for a charter under which to do business at some point near the West Shore Railway in the city of Kingston, was held this morning before Superintendent Eugene Lamb Richards, of the State Banking Department, at which a large number of Kingston people appeared in favor of or to oppose the application.

Those who appeared in favor of the application were Arthur C. Connelly, Gilbert F. Kennedy, R. E. Leighton, Anthony Gentile, George J. Schryver, John Allard, William O'Reilly, Albert H. Cook, William J. Byrne and Joseph Kriger.

The opposition was represented by Dr. E. H. Loughran, president, John D. Alliger, treasurer, and Philip Elting, attorney of the Ulster County Savings Institution, with Howard Chipp of counsel; Delaney N. Mathews, president, and William D. Brinier, attorney for the State of New York National Bank; F. J. R. Clarke, president, and Judge Betts, attorney for the Ulster County National Bank; Charles Tappan, treasurer, and Judge Betts, attorney for the Kingston Savings Bank; Virgil B. Van Wageningen, for the Kingston National Bank; Edward Coykendall, president, and A. T. Clearwater, attorney, for the First National Bank of Rondout, and A. T. Clearwater, as attorney for the Rondout Savings Bank. The Rondout National Bank did not appear.

Mr. Connelly, who presented the argument for the applicants, said that Kingston is the only city of its size in the state that has no trust company, and the only reason given by the opposition to this application is the elusive one that there are now enough banks in the city—but enough for who? In 1885 Kingston, with a population of 11,600 in the two villages with unoccupied land in between, had five national banks and three savings banks. The West Shore Railroad was constructed in 1884 and resulted in building up the central part of the city, but banking conditions remain the same now as in 1885, with a population of 27,000. Only one national bank pays interest on deposits and it requires three months minimum. People would benefit by the advent of a trust company and would receive more attractive inducements for deposits, such as other people enjoy.

Of ten cities about the same size as Kingston, only three—Poughkeepsie, Newburgh and Watertown—show a greater per capita wealth, based on the amount of bank deposits. Kingston has sufficient wealth to justify its having a trust company.

To the funds now deposited in Kingston banks, said Mr. Connelly, should be added the sums diverted to trust companies in Poughkeepsie, Newburgh and other cities, amounting to $75,000 in Poughkeepsie and an equal amount elsewhere. Figures show that trust companies do not insure banks. With a population of 27,000 Kingston has increased its savings bank deposits in 25 years, from $3,500,000 to $13,000,000, and the banks have a surplus of $3,814,000, showing that the savings banks do not need protection. Even directors in existing banks have without solicitation offered to subscribe for stock in the proposed trust company. As an indication of the strong desire to establish the trust company Mr. Connelly cited an unsolicited offer received from a man willing to subscribe $55,000 of its stock. Mr. Connelly asserted that the Kingston and Rondout banks exchange only once a week and said this indicated that new blood was needed in the business.

Judge Betts, in opposition, presented affidavits showing that Kingston has two business centers and that these are less than a mile away from that portion of the city in which it is proposed to establish a new bank. He said there was too much bank capital in Kingston. The banks were unable to loan all of their available funds locally and had to go outside. In addition to the banks the city had two loan associations and a postal savings bank. The savings banks, at least, he said, were entitled to protection.

Superintendent Richards said that his investigator had been furnished by the Kingston Chamber of Commerce with a statement of employment in Kingston showing 2,770 persons employed in the central portion of the city, 1,951 in Rondout and 91 in Kingston. The central zone extends from Albany avenue to Chester street. The tremendous element to be considered, the superintendent said, was the fact that with a capital surplus and undivided profits of $1,400,000 the Kingston banks had deposits of $2,900,000. This was a funny situation.

Mr. Van Wageningen said it was due to the fact that there was nobody to borrow who would give good security.

Judge Clearwater, Mr. Brinier, Mr. Chipp and Mr. Van Wageningen made arguments in opposition to granting the application for a charter.

Superintendent Richards said if he authorized the establishing of the trust company it would be in such a way that the savings banks would not be affected, at least during his administration.

Decision was reserved.

ELLENVILLE.

Ellenville, July 27.—A very interesting meeting of the Women's Suffrage Club of Ellenville was held at "Maplewood," the home of Mrs. LeFevre, Tuesday afternoon. The meeting was held out on the large front veranda and there was a good attendance. The officers are, president, Mrs. Holman; first vice president, Mrs. R. T. Cookingham; second vice president, Mrs. B. C. Eaton; secretary, Mrs. B. M. Taylor; treasurer, Mrs. George F. Andrews. The meeting was called to order at 3:30 o'clock by the very efficient president, Mrs. Holman, who presided most acceptably during the meeting. Mrs. Taylor read the report of the last meeting, which was received as read. The president after a short business session, at which time it was decided to enter a suffrage float at the coming Ulster County Fair, also to have a library of suffrage reading matter for members and all interested. Miss Peters of New York and Cragmoor, N. J., was introduced as one of the speakers of the afternoon. Miss Peters, who has been for some time a noted and profitable address upon the subject so vital at the present time, prefacing her remarks with a brief history of suffrage. The address was received with hearty applause by all present. Following the address by Miss Peters, the president introduced Mrs. Harriet Otis Dellenbaugh, who needs no introduction to an Ellenville audience, having some years ago been a resident of Ellenville and later years a yearly visitor, as she spends a part of her summers at her home at Cragmoor, New York. It is a rare treat for the friends in Ellenville to listen to this gifted woman. Mrs. Dellenbaugh read to the audience that very inspiring drama of suffrage, entitled "Back of the Veil," and to those who were not privileged to hear Mrs. Dellenbaugh certainly missed a wonderful treat. The reading was received with hearty appreciation and well merited applause. At the conclusion of the reading the meeting adjourned. A meeting will be held in August, time and place to be announced. At this meeting several new members were added to the roll. It is understood that Dr. Davis will be present and speak on suffrage at a date to be announced.

MONTECATO HEIGHTS.

Montecato Heights, July 27.—Miss Anna Van Etten of Tuxedo Park is spending a two weeks' vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. Van Etten. James Rose and family of Massachusetts are visiting friends in this place. Miss Ethel McDonald has returned home from Kingston. We think if our board of health officers would visit some of the boarding houses along our public thoroughfares they would find some other things could be a menace to the public besides infantile paralysis. Alfred Wells of Briarcliff and Mrs. Lucy Dunn of this place were married at Accord on Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Van Etten spent Sunday afternoon at Cragmoor. The heavy downpour of rain during part of Tuesday and Wednesday caused our little creek to overflow its banks and flood meadows and growing crops in several places. In some instances where the hay was cut and in the swath. That with the bad weather makes it very discouraging to the farmer. Leonard Van Etten, who has been suffering for the past two weeks with grip and other ills, is slowly improving. One of our citizens had rather a brilliant experience on Saturday evening when in an attempt to take a short cut to one of his neighbors he lost his bearings and wandered around until finally brought to a halt in a dense swamp. His cries alarmed two of his neighbors who came to his assistance with a lantern and sent him on his way rejoicing that he didn't have to spend the night in the wilderness.

ALLIGERVILLE.

Alligerville, July 27.—There will be an ice cream sale at the Reformed Church Hall Saturday evening, July 22. Miss Verna Winchell of Kingston is visiting relatives in this place. Joseph Bogart is spending a week at home. Mrs. Paul is visiting Mrs. William Brady. Mrs. Van Gaasbeck and daughter, Mrs. Charles Avery, were guests of Jeremiah Young and family the past week. Mrs. William Boyle and son of Brooklyn are boarding at Cornelius Ferrell's. Miss Bessie DeWitt of New Paltz visited relatives in this place the first of the week. Miss Margaret Forbes of Kingston is spending some time with her grandmother, Mrs. Julia Forbes. Mrs. H. B. DeWitt and sons spent Sunday at Kingston Point. George Krom and daughter of Cerkill are spending some time with Mr. Krom's sisters, Mrs. Mary Schoonmaker and Mrs. Jacob Steen. C. E. Alliger and son Harry were guests of John Hendrickson and others the first of the week. A Sunday School Conference will be held in the Reformed Church Sunday afternoon, July 30.

SEAGER.

Seager, July 26.—Mrs. Scott Smith was called to Kingston Monday by the death of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Myer. Mrs. Edward Burns and daughter of Highpoint, North Carolina, arrived in this place to spend the remainder of the summer. Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Kittle and son of Kingston are spending a two weeks' vacation with Mr. Kittle's parents in this place. Mr. and Mrs. Frank George and children of Arkville have been visiting Mrs. George's sister, Mrs. John D. Haynes. Mr. and Mrs. George Kraft and Dr. and Mrs. Henry and daughter, all of Kingston, motored to Scott's Neck recently.

HIGHLAND.

Highland, July 27.—Last Sunday afternoon a great many people attended the funeral services of Captain Egbert Van Wagner from his late home on Millton avenue. He had been ill in St. Luke's Hospital, Newburgh, for nearly five weeks and the family and friends held fast to the hope of hope which parted and left grief and loneliness in the home. The Rev. J. C. Coddington, pastor of the M. E. Church, made a most eloquent and very impressive prayer and the Rev. G. H. Schofield, his pastor, took for his text, "What I do thou knowest not now, but thou shalt know hereafter." At that time it seemed very appropriate. He paid a fine tribute to this man. He was respected and esteemed by all who knew him. He had been in the employ of the Central-Hudson Steamboat Company for quite a number of years and was a very trusty man. He belonged to the Odd Fellows, also the Masonic order. The fraternalists came to the funeral in a body. He was a member of the Presbyterian Church and sang in the choir and often helped out in entertainments where he could give assistance with his voice. He will be missed in the home and also through the community and the family have the heartfelt sympathy of all. The beautiful flowers sent by relatives, friends, organizations and societies, gave evidence of the high esteem in which he was held. He is survived by his wife, two sons, his father, two brothers and one sister who will always have deep-seated in their hearts the thought "that it was always a pleasure to have him at home with them and that his influence will not be forgotten." Interment was in Highland cemetery, under direction of W. E. Wilcox, undertaker.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Koons of Albany spent some time recently with the former's father and wife at their home on Grand street.

Mr. and Mrs. Uriah Decker, Mrs. Charles DuBois, Mrs. Lloyd Plass and Miss Lizzie Decker were in Poughkeepsie on Tuesday, called there by the severe illness of Miss Ethel Decker.

Highland streets, stores and homes were deprived of light Tuesday evening by some of the wires becoming crossed. The lights came on about midnight. It was very dark and one just wondered how they ever did get along without the electric lights for so long, and how we do miss them when there is wire trouble, and we ought to appreciate them more than ever after being in darkness.

George Davis of Milton avenue has been ill for a few days. Glad to report he is improving nicely.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Palmer, Miss Laura and Louis Palmer spent a few days the past week in Sullivan county. They report a delightful time.

Mrs. George H. Brown of Vineyard avenue is now enjoying herself at Asbury Park. She expects to be away a week or more.

Mrs. B. B. Harper of Clintondale is spending a short time in this place with friends and relatives.

Mrs. George Cornell spent Tuesday in Clintondale with relatives.

There will be service in the Presbyterian Church next Sunday. The pastor, the Rev. G. H. Schofield, plans to be in his accustomed place, after a short vacation.

Mrs. M. Stowe and daughter have gone to Boston to spend some time with her mother, who resides there.

The report comes to your reporter that Eli Merritt has disposed of his farm on Vineyard avenue, and we hear he sold it to a New York party.

Miss Susie Lent is spending a portion of her vacation in Maine.

The many friends of Mrs. William Buck were shocked and pained to hear of her death the past week. She resided in Iowa. She was a sister of Mrs. J. W. Foster of this place.

About five years ago she was here for a visit and many friends looked forward to her coming to Highland. She will be greatly missed for she was the life of all companies and a jolly one in her home.

She leaves a husband, and son and three daughters, two brothers and one sister, who will miss the companionship of their loved one.

Mr. and Mrs. Norbet Schults of Lent street, Poughkeepsie, were guests of friends in this place on Sunday.

Miss Ethel Decker, who has been ill and confined to her home here for several weeks with an attack of tonsillitis, after recovering from that, went Monday to Poughkeepsie to have her tonsils removed. Dr. Henry F. Owsley, a specialist of the eye, ear, nose and throat, performed the operation, which was very successful. At last report she was resting very comfortably and all hopes of her speedy recovery are at present encouraging and many friends are on the anxious seat every day and hope soon to hear the good news of her return to her home here among relatives and neighbors.

Hugo Bartholomay and chauffeur from New York city motored to this place Tuesday in his fine limousine and called at the home of the Hovets and Dedricks, who are sisters of Mr. Bartholomay. They left here the same day, accompanied by Mrs. Henry Hovet and son, Harry, for a few days' stay at Saratoga and some other prominent resorts.

Miss Nellie Steller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Steller of Grand street, is engaged to H. A. Flack, who is at present in Poughkeepsie. We understand the wedding will take place in the near future.

Mrs. J. C. Dedrick spent a few days in New York city last week on business.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Van Wert of Maple avenue have had as their guest the past week Miss Ethel Lasher of Poughkeepsie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ford Lasher.

Mrs. Sanderson has returned home after spending a week, most delightfully, at Grahamsville, with her people.

Miss Katie Sillock of Poughkeepsie has spent several days here with Mr. and Mrs. Myron Terpening.

Mrs. Martha Upright was in Poughkeepsie last week.

Miss Caroline Gillman of Poughkeepsie was in town the past week, calling on friends.

Mrs. Chester Atkins and daughter, Ethel, spent one day last week in New Paltz visiting relations.

Miss Florence LoForte, of Bogota, New Jersey, was in town Sunday.

The Rev. and Mrs. J. C. Coddington

are entertaining for two weeks a sister of Mr. Coddington.

Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Crum, of Poughkeepsie, were in town last Sunday.

Captain and Mrs. Wolf of Poughkeepsie were in this place Sunday last.

Allie Williams has been on a visit with her school friend, Janet Preston, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Preston, of Milton.

Harry Traver was a Sunday guest of relatives in Red Hook, which place was his home several years ago, and the old place and its associations cling to his memory still.

Miss Edith Dickinson was a week end guest of friends in Wappingers Falls, and reports a delightful time.

Dr. LaMoree and wife have returned from a short visit in Wappingers Falls with friends. They had a very pleasant time.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fort also Captain Dennison and some of the men in the employ of the Central Hudson Steamboat Company, were in attendance at the funeral services of the late Captain Egbert Van Wagner last Sunday from his late home in this place.

H. E. Wilcox was a New York business visitor last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Decker of Catskill, also Mr. and Mrs. Halley Mackey of Williamsport, Pa., were guests the week end of Captain and Mrs. R. H. Decker, at their home, "Glen View," Highland.

James H. Rose is now taking a vacation and is having a grand time with relatives in Paterson, New Jersey.

Mrs. Edward Starr has had her parents from Galveston, Texas, with her for a long visit. They left here last week for their home, accompanied by their daughter, Mrs. Starr, and young son, who will remain south for some time.

We now have a new telephone girl, Dorothy Churchill, is the operator at the board in place of Miss Ruth Harcourt, who soon will take a position in the post office, when Dr. G. S. Lamoree takes the management.

We understand from a P. E. O. member that the society expects to hold a picnic at Bear Mountain on August 5.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Kurtz and children motored to Wallkill last Sunday and visited with Mr. and Mrs. S. Vandemark. Their son, Gordon, spent a week there. Mr. and Mrs. Vandemark were residents here a few years ago and made many friends during their stay.

Mr. and Mrs. James Leonard are at present entertaining Mrs. Peter McMillen of New Paltz.

Lawyer A. D. Lent was in Newburgh last week on business. He is connected with the silk association of the city.

Mrs. Victor Clearwater of Lake Mohonk was a recent visitor in this place.

Henry Hovet of New York will spend the latter part of the week at his summer home on Maple avenue.

KINGSTON, N. Y., JULY 27, 1916.

Considerable comment, mostly hostile, has been aroused by Kaiser Wilhelm's recent speech in which he expressed his ardent desire to take a more active part in the war and explained his failure to do so by saying: "My life must be conserved carefully for the welfare of Germany. In order to carry out the duties assigned to me by Divine appointment." Of course, no one will argue seriously that a general in chief should expose himself on the firing line, and the criticism referred to is directed to the "Divine appointment" phrase. We are reminded that a few years ago an American railroad president was accused of blasphemy because he referred to himself and his colleagues as men whom God in his wisdom had given control of certain properties. But is it not possible that both Emperor William and President Taft were right? Men in control of nations, business enterprises or anything else get their places somehow. Was it in opposition to the wishes of an omnipotent God? If any one attempts to argue on general principles that God, being good, would not appoint some of the individuals who are in places of power, we can say, as Zophar did to Job, "Canst thou by searching find out God?" or even quote the hymn line which says, "God moves in a mysterious way." In religious gatherings it is a common thing for comparatively humble individuals to refer to themselves as servants of God, and it is considered a pious expression. After all, it may not matter so much what is said as how it is said and by whom.

There is no money in the teachers' pension fund of New York City, and the other seven pension funds of the metropolis will shortly become bankrupt, according to an official report made a few days ago. The theory upon which these funds were constructed contemplated setting aside during the activity of each employee enough money to give him a pension after he retired. Of the $57,000,000 already paid out in pensions the taxpayers have had to put up $49,500,000. In spite of this, there is a shortage in the funds of over two hundred million dollars. These figures and others on the same subject are printed in the newspapers, but do not attract the attention they deserve from the plain citizens who are unable to get city jobs and have to do their own saving for money to keep them from the alms house in their time of old age. We have never yet been able to see clearly the justice of contributing public money to certain special classes of supernumerary workers. Public servants are paid better than private servants and on the average fare no greater hazards. Prophecy is a risky business, but it seems to us that the day will come when there will be pensions only for persons actually injured in the public service, and that the workmen's compensation law will be extended to cover the whole subject.

Without being technical, the Court of Appeals decision setting aside the Senate reapportionment made by the last legislature holds that certain provisions of the Constitution are mandatory and have been so plainly violated that the reapportionment cannot be sustained. This decision is in line with other decisions of the same court declaring the unconstitutionality of other legislative measures based on political expediency. In the present case the Court of Appeals points out that in reapportioning the Senate Districts in New York county, certain city blocks could have been shifted, without dividing the blocks, so as to make the districts more nearly equal in size. The last previous political measure condemned by the Court of Appeals was the Democratic attempt made several years ago by the legislature and Democratic governor to disfranchise thousands of up-state voters by requiring personal registration. In that case the legislative action was so grossly in violation of the Constitution that the Court of Appeals merely had to call attention to the Constitution itself, which apparently was like an unburned sea to the Tammany legislators, who had the old-time Sullivan idea that the Constitution should be "nothing between friends." The reapportionment of 1906 was set aside by the courts because it violated the Constitutional provision that districts must be compact and made up of counties that are contiguous, which was not the case when Richmond and Suffolk counties were joined in one district. In the present case the court intimates, but does not decide, that the difference in the number of inhabitants between districts "might be so very trivial and technical that it should be overlooked," which is a far different situation than was presented in the other cases cited. It will always be difficult for laymen to understand how lawmakers who are themselves lawyers so completely disregard language which to the lay mind is so very clear and understandable. The Sullivan theory is the only satisfactory explanation, but that theory invariably strikes a snag when it comes before the Court of Appeals.

Mourning De Luxe.

Arnold Daly was talking about the fashions.

"First the slashed skirt and now the short skirt," he said, "have certainly brought the stocking into marked prominence."

"The stocking—the silk stocking—in the streets, in the restaurants, getting in and out of motor cars, and above all, in the illustrations of the magazines—the stocking flashes its beauty on us everywhere."

"What shall we do to testify to our regret for the boss's death? Close down the show?"

"Close down the show? Not said his assistant. We'll put the chorus in black stockings."—Washington Star.

Not Famous.

William Wilberforce had a sister who was a hustler. She hustled for William at the hustings and succeeded in getting him elected to parliament. One occasion when she had concluded her stump speech, some enthusiasts in the crowd shouted, "Miss Wilberforce forever!" The lady stepped forward. "Gentlemen, I thank you," she said, "but believe me, I do not wish to be Miss Wilberforce forever."—Boston Transcript.

Pass and Deliver.

They know how to treat theatrical hunters in America, as the following will show, says The Scotsman:

One of the theater managers once ran across a friend of the slightest possible acquaintance, who asked him for a "pass."

"I'd give you one willingly, but I haven't a card with me. I don't see how I can do it without my card."

The "deadhead" looked blank. Suddenly the manager said:

"I'll tell you what I can do. Instead of using a card, I'll write 'Pass hereon,' on your shirt front. That will get you in all right. Will that do?"

The man assented, and the pass was written. That evening the "deadhead" showed up at the theater in due course, and the man at the door nodded when he looked at the signature on the shining bosom. "All right; that's good."

The "deadhead" passed through the gate and started into the theater. He had only taken a few steps when the doorman called him back.

The man looked surprised. "What's the matter now? Isn't it all right?"

The doorman nodded. "Yes; but you must give up the pass!"

Nothing Gained.

Senator Fall was discussing the Mexican situation, which he has made his specialty.

"The action you speak of," he said, "seems to offer some redress and satisfaction; but consider it closely and you'll find that it gives you nothing at all. It is like the remark of the waitress in the cheap boarding house:

SUMMER SCHOOL AT DR. SAHLER'S

The Summer School Held Every August in the Large Oak-Door Pavilion at the C. O. Sahler Sanatorium Begins Tuesday, August 1, at 2 p. m.

(From "The Master.") As the month of August draws near, Dr. Sahler receives many letters of inquiry concerning the Summer School, its object, expenses, etc. The school is an ideal the Doctor has worked for earnestly for many years, but circumstances were such he could not take it up in a practical way until last summer.

During the previous winter and spring he ardently worked to formulate the plans and bring to a point of excellency the special feature of the work and entertainment portion of the programme which was to continue through the month of August. The lectures and entertainments were not only attended by the patients and guests of the Sanatorium, but a large delegation of Kingston people were in daily attendance and were greatly surprised to learn for the first time the magnitude and success Dr. Sahler has achieved in the stupendous work he has been accomplishing for years healing the sick and afflicted, and teaching humanity how to bring health and happiness to themselves and others. For years Dr. Sahler has delivered a Sunday night lecture, and a great many of patients, and many a man and woman have been equipped for life's work as never before from the practical teachings the Doctor has instilled into their beings. Dr. Sahler is one of the pioneer exponents of Metaphysical, Psychological and Occult teachings, realizing the great demand and need for more light and information on these interesting subjects, he organized and made possible the Summer School to be held each year in the spacious pavilion erected for this special purpose, situated in the beautiful 7 acre Sanatorium Park, surrounded by the many beds of flowers and luxuriant growth of ever changing foliage. It is indeed a wonderful experience to sit in the open air, surrounded by nature's handiwork, and drink deep draughts of truth flowing from lips God has seen fit to call to his work of helping and teaching mankind that they may likewise go forth and herald "That Something" to suffering humanity.

Dr. Sahler personally will only act as a fill in, giving occasional illustrated lectures on different subjects of special interest to the many patrons of the school. The program this year cannot be excelled with its splendid roster of lecturers, teachers, and entertainers. The school will open Tuesday, Aug. 1, with Mrs. Mary E. T. Chapin as teacher and lecturer for the first week. Mrs. Chapin's successes in the lecture field in New York City have received such favorable comments from press and public that further praise on our part would seem inadequate.

The second week beginning August 8, we will be favored with Mrs. Jessie Cheney, leader of the Right Living and Thinking Society, and a brilliant exponent of New Thought Philosophy, and her addresses are always marked with a bit of humor which drives dull care to the winds. Many friends and acquaintances will rejoice to see Miss Villa Fanti-Page holding the attention of the school the third week. Miss Page was the Doctor's able assistant in the Metaphysical work at the Sanatorium for several years, and has met with marvelous success in the new field of labor she has entered at Gramercy Park, New York.

To cap the climax and round up fittingly the work of the school, we have secured the services of the brightest star that shines in the firmament of Metaphysical research, Prof. W. J. Colville, the Master Psychologist. Mr. Colville hardly needs an introduction as he and his writings are known throughout this country and abroad, and with his unique personality and sly wit and humor, he captivates his audience at once. When he arises on the stage he little knows what his remarks are to be, for as he says, "I simply open my mouth and have Spirit do the rest," which truly verifies the truth of the good book which says, "Open thy mouth and I will fill it." His language is chosen with rare precision, and each word expresses the exact meaning demanded of the most critical. At times he rises to heights of pure oratory and the delight of all is that he is able to clothe the most occult metaphysical truths in language that the most unlearned can understand. Single lectures will be given at different periods by such well known public speakers as Dr. Geo. W. Nash, a retired physician, who has chosen to devote his life to the study of the occult, and the many historic points of interest thereabouts, especially those old Revolutionary landmarks which appeal so strongly to all Americans. Dr. Geo. W. Nash's lecture last week at the New Paltz Normal School caused much favorable comment from his large audience, his subject being the early history and life in this country, illustrated with a rare collection of old relics, some of them worth their weight in gold for their historic value.

Mr. William Trueman of Katrine, New York, a most enthusiastic exponent of the Henry George Theory, will deliver a lecture before the school on "A Prophet of California." The general public will be greatly pleased to hear the name of Poutiney Bigelow mentioned as one of the lecturers. Mr. Bigelow is an author, lecturer and traveler of world-wide reputation. He has been U. S. Minister to France, was admitted to the New York State Bar in 1882, but after a few years gave up law for journalism. He was the first man to take a canoe through the Iron Gates of the Danube, a life member of the Royal Geographical Society of London, as well as a great many other foreign and American societies. Among his most prominent books are "The German Emperor and his Neighbors," "Paddies and Politics,"

Down The Danube, History of the German Struggle for Liberty, White-man's Africa, and Children of the Nations. Most of his writings have been translated into German and French. We await with great anticipation this renowned lecturer and traveler.

Rev. Father Zurcher, pastor of St. Vincent's Church, North Evans, New York, will receive a most cordial welcome in his lecture expounding the truth, relative to the liquor traffic. Father Zurcher and Dr. Sahler stand side by side in the grand cause of temperance, ever ready to lend their aid financially or oratorically in the grand work which is going to set our nation free of the curse of King Alcohol within the next few years.

Mrs. Mary K. Maule, national suffrage speaker of New York city, will favor us with two of her famous lectures on the national issue of woman's suffrage. Mrs. Maule is the mother of that talented lady, Mrs. Florence Uptegrove, whom we hope to have with us for at least a few days during the month.

Miss Jessie A. Fowler, the last representative of the Fowler and Wells Phrenological Institute of New York and London, England, is also scheduled to appear on one or two evenings of the month. She will be met with great enthusiasm, as her fame as a speaker is recognized as far above the average, both here and abroad.

A great many will be interested to know that W. H. Hook, Manager of the Ulster County Farm Bureau, will give one of his practical talks some evening during the month. This will appeal to a great many who have heard him, for he not only gives a thoroughly practical, scientific talk, but delivers it in such a commonsense way that all can understand, and his audiences are always more than appreciative.

We must not forget the Rev. J. J. Henry, who so delighted us last year with his rare wit and bubbling humor. We feel sure his many admirers of last season will make a special effort to be on hand at his special lecture, for one felt lighter of heart and brighter of spirit listening to his many amusing, yet truthful anecdotes.

Mrs. Fred J. Goetz, of Schenectady, who was only with us for a few days last year, will come this year for the whole month of August. Mrs. Goetz is a soprano soloist of the Thursday Morning Club of that city, and also of the choir of the First Presbyterian Church of Johnstown, N. Y. Her rich soprano voice will be heard each afternoon and two evenings during the month she will give a recital, assisted by the other talent which comprise the entertainment portion of the school, and this includes the Sanatorium orchestra under the leadership of Mr. Russell S. Brooks, who is a violinist and leader of exceptional talent.

The other members of the orchestra are musicians of exceptional ability on their several instruments. The moving pictures will be of a high order, and will be projected upon the screen through the large new latest type movie machine under the personal supervision of C. Victor Elzy.

One afternoon and evening during the month will be given over to the fair and bazaar, held each year for the benefit of the fraternity and Lend-a-Hand. Last year the beautiful fancy articles and art craft productions were sold out before evening, but this year an ample supply of articles has been arranged for so all may have a hand in helping along this grand and noble work of charity by relieving the suffering and oppressed at home first. Kingston people realizing this great home mission work bought everything in sight last year, but this year the quantity has been sufficiently arranged for to meet the demands of all.

As a special added attraction A. H. Anderson of the Elvanhoe Colony of Artists and Craftsmen has consented to come to us for a day and besides giving one of his famous lectures he will bring with him a rare collection of silverware direct from the hands of the art workers at the famous colony, of paintings, etchings, jewelry and

HAD THREATENED TO KILL HERSELF

Love Affair That Went Wrong, Disputes With Neighbors and Extreme Nervousness the Probable Causes of Mrs. Davis's Suicide.

A love affair that went wrong may have been responsible for the mental condition of Mrs. Elvin Davis at the time she took strychnine at her home at Tongore just at supper time on Tuesday evening, resulting in her death in great agony, before a physician could reach her.

Mrs. Davis, whose maiden name was Sylvia Shurtner when she married Davis about a year ago, was 21 years old instead of 28, as stated previously. Several years ago during the construction of the Ashokan reservoir and while many men were employed in the vicinity, she met a young southern engineer who was of pleasing appearance and a good talker. She became fascinated by him and he proposed marriage.

They purchased some furniture in Kingston with which they intended to go housekeeping, but on the day they had arranged to procure their marriage license he disappeared. He went west and afterward wrote several letters to her, the receipt of which always caused extreme nervousness and at certain times she became deeply affected over the memory of her early love affair.

The house occupied by Elvin Davis and his wife at Tongore was a double house, the other half of which was occupied by an Italian woman and her daughter, who had several Italian boarders.

To all appearances the Davises lived happily together most of the time but sometimes neighbors heard cross words exchanged. On Monday Davis and one of the Italian boarders had some words over some sort of accusation which the Italian believed Mrs. Davis had made against him, and on Tuesday morning when Davis took the matter up with his wife before he went to work they had a long quarrel. After he had gone to work, Mrs. Grace Stickney, who lives nearby, visited the Davis house and Mrs. Davis confided to her that matters had come to a climax and her husband must do something or else she would take her own life. Mrs. Stickney placed no credence in what Mrs. Davis said, believing the statement to be that of a woman who was laboring under great excitement and who had no serious intention of suicide.

Davis returned from his work about seven o'clock Tuesday evening. He says he and his wife did not have any angry words, but that everything was pleasant between them. A few minutes later the Italian woman and her daughter rapped on the door connecting the two apartments, and he suggested that she open the door and see who was there. The two neighbors entered and Davis says they had a long and warm argument with Mrs. Davis, but he does not remember what it was about or what was said by any of them. He does remember that his wife wanted the Italian woman to leave, and he finally got up and pushed them toward the door.

After the Italian woman had gone, says Davis, his wife continued with the preparation of supper, and when it was completed she called to him to sit down at the table. Before he had taken his place, he says, his wife, who had been standing at her place at the table, poured some white powder from a bottle on a slice of bread and butter which she doubled over and began to eat, at the same time throwing the bottle across the table toward his place. The bottle rolled to the floor, he says, and he picked it up and discovered that it bore a poison label.

At once, he says, he broke two eggs which he procured from the pantry and emptying the whites in a glass, handed the glass to his wife and urged her to swallow the eggs, but she refused and sat in a rocking chair, saying she was going to die. He rushed out of the house and called several neighbors, who found Mrs. Davis sitting in the rocking chair when they entered. They prepared salt and water and other things which would act as an emetic but she steadfastly refused to take them. When Davis returned to the house from the nearest telephone, where he had summoned Dr. J. D. W. Dumond of West Shokan, he noticed that the glass which had contained the whites of the eggs was empty, but he does not know what became of them, and neither do the neighbors.

At the urgent solicitation of the neighbors, Mrs. Davis finally consented to lie on the lounge and a short time afterwards she began to froth at the mouth and then went into convulsions which continued for some time until she died, a few minutes before the arrival of the doctor.

When Davis saw the poison label on the bottle which his wife had thrown on the table and which had rolled to the floor, he says he knocked the remainder of the slice of bread from his wife's hand and it fell to the floor, where the dog ate part of it. Afterward the family cat came into the room and ate the remainder of the slice. Both animals afterward were seized with convulsions and died.

Davis says that his wife never had talked about taking her life and he did not know that she had the strychnine.

By her neighbors, Mrs. Davis was held in high esteem. They knew she was somewhat emotional at times and at times she appeared to be unhappy. This was attributed, and probably correctly, to the love affair of several years ago.

An investigation was made by District Attorney Traver on Wednesday afternoon, which convinced him that there was nothing about the case which called for official action beyond that already taken in having an autopsy performed and the contents of the stomach examined by County Bacteriologist Dr. Raymond Sanderson, who found that the stomach had contained strychnine.

Bradley, the candy man from Newburgh, has made a business call in town.

Mrs. Althea Mackey is getting along fine since the operation for a tumor on the head.

Hon. C. M. Woolsey of Milton has been in town looking over the improved road affairs.

Most of the "Overlook" boarders attended the Catholic Church in Milton on Sunday.

A prominent member of the Baptist Church here states "that soon a service will be held in it, and that the Rev. Mr. Wilkie of Newburgh will officiate."

The lady inspector or inspectress of Milton has been in this neighborhood ordering the fifth to be burned up where found and empty cans removed.

The weather here is hot, the thermometer standing 95 degrees.

H. V. Mackey can run his new car, the Ford, which was purchased recently.

Mr. Young of Marlborough did a good thing for the public morals last Sunday when he ordered some young men who were bathing in the Hudson to wear bathing suits after that day or be subject to arrest and fine.

Eggs are scarce in this vicinity owing to a great demand and to the lack of layers among the fowls. Sold for 32 cents per dozen, which is high in rural sections.

Relatives have made a few days' visit at W. L. Mackey's.

The great war which is sweeping over Europe is ruining homes, causing sorrow and wasting millions, and the sooner one side or the other wins will be better. The sturdy, best blood of the nations at war is being shed. Every day adds to the horror of it. To England, France, Russia, Germany and other nations. Pride of rule in a military or commercial sense, lack of wisdom from above and one man power have brought this terrible condition upon the world.

The Methodists of Marlborough talk of building a tabernacle for temporary use on the old site until sufficient funds are on hand to build a new church.

Tuesday there was quite some excitement in the Italian colony here as two small children had strolled away or became lost. Before a searching party was organized, however, they were found and happiness and content reigned once more. Perhaps the kids started out in search of more macaroni.

The Democrats had so much love for English exports before Wilson's election, but now England has made out a black list of certain large American firms causing a political blight to fall upon the strenuous advocates of a reduced tariff for England's free trade by cheap manufacturing labor.

GERMAN SOCIALISTS TO FIGHT ON ALASKA DOUBLES SALES IN YEAR

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Berlin, July 27.—At a mass meeting held at Waldenburg in Silesia Phillip Scheidemann, the leader of the Socialists and former vice-president of the Reichstag said:

"The destruction of Germany would mean a terrible fate for the millions of our workmen. We would be at the mercy of the merciless victors and Germany would again become an agricultural state without commerce and industry. The whole German nation would be condemned to a state of utter misery, from which it could never rise again. These facts we understood when the war broke out and we shaped our policy accordingly. In August, 1914, we declared that we would fight for the empire to the last drop of blood and we are as firmly determined as ever to defend the Fatherland against its host of enemies. What a victory of our enemies would mean we have seen in Eastern Prussia. It is true that in Belgium conditions also are not as pleasant as in peaceful Waldenburg, but our soldiers in the enemy's country have not acted like the Russians, and we are proud of that."

"When we voted for the war credits we energetically protested against a policy of conquest and we have stated time and again that peace should be brought about as quickly as possible, but our efforts were misrepresented by our enemies. Last spring, when I said in the Reichstag that Germany was strong enough to talk of peace and to take the first step in this direction the French and British press scurrilously shouted: 'Germany is down and out! Let us finish her forever!'"

"Under these conditions it is our solemn duty to fight, until the victory is won, no matter how enormous the sacrifices may be. We will stick to the empire to the end, come what may, but we have never ceased to permit him to support the policy of Count Westarp and the Pan-Germans who want to annex Belgium and Northern France. We are fighting for the existence of our nation and for nothing else."

"The Socialists of the allied countries support their governments and of us they expect that we should turn traitors. Only recently the French Socialists appealed to us to start a revolution and on the following day in parliament they voted for new credits to hasten the destruction of Germany."

Serbia's Homesteads.

In Serbia the land belongs to the people, and every grown man has a claim to five acres, which he can neither sell nor have taken from him. His land and its produce are exempt from all claims for debt. Thus the poorest man in Serbia has always five acres to his credit.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, July 27.—Alaska's sales to the United States in the fiscal year 1916, aggregated nearly $50,000,000, a sum double the annual average since 1912 and only exceeded by those of ten countries when measured by their sales to us in the last year prior to the great war. In addition to this Alaska shipped to us in 1915-16 gold valued at $16,000,000 and silver to the value of $760,000, both from its own mines.

The predominant feature of the year's trade, according to an analysis made by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Department of Commerce, was the rise of copper to first place among Alaska's export staples, thereby supplanting salmon and gold as the leading items. Receipts of copper in ore, waste, and regulus from Alaska aggregated 117,000,000 pounds valued at $26,500,000. This is four times the average for the preceding three years and exceeds the combined imports of that class from Chile, Cuba, Canada, and Mexico, the leading foreign sources of this form of copper.

Canned salmon shipped to the United States in the last fiscal year amounted to 216,000,000 pounds valued at $18,300,000 an increase of 24,000,000 pounds over 1915 and of 40,000,000 over 1914.

The shipment of $16,200,000 worth of Alaskan gold to domestic ports was larger by $1,000,000 than the total for 1915 and by $4,000,000 that of 1914. Silver shipments, valued at $760,000 in 1916, were $500,000 more than in 1915 and $600,000 more than in 1914.

Insurance Distributions.

The Life Insurance Press has just published the amounts by cities and villages in New York state that have been paid to claimants during the past year on life insurance policies. The amount paid in Kingston was $382,000; Saugerties, $103,500; Ellenville, $72,000.

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

1680—A Simple Stylish Model.

Dress with sleeve in either of two lengths; and with or without pockets. For misses and small women.

This will make a splendid morning dress and is also nice for business, for porch, outing, or general wear. In linen, percale, gingham or seersucker, it is an ideal style for a house dress. In gabardine, voile, chambray, crepe, tub silk, serge or taffeta, it may be worn on the street, for business or shopping, and with a little embellishment, a trimming of contrasting material or a bit of embroidery, a real chic little gown could be developed. The pockets are attached to the belt, and form a practical and attractive style feature. The collar and sleeve is new. The fronts are lapped at the closing. The skirt is a four-gore model cut with ample fullness.

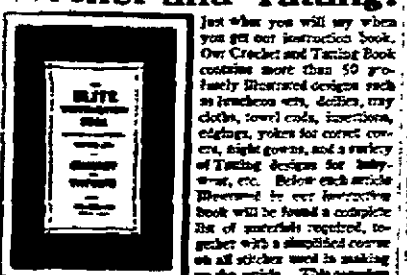

The pattern is in 3 sizes: 16, 18 and 20 years. It requires 6 1/2 yards of 44-inch material for an 8-year size. The skirt measures a little over 3 yards at the foot.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Rondout, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

CATHOLICS SHOULD OBSERVE QUARANTINE

Timely Appeal by the Very Rev.
Rev. Dean Hickey, Who Urges
That Children Remain Away From Church Services.

The following letter from the Very
Rev. John J. Hickey, dean of Ulster and Sullivan counties, urging that children observe the quarantine laws and suggesting their course in religious matters while doing so, has been received by The Freeman:

Kingston, N. Y., July 27, 1916.
Editor Freeman:

The present spread of the infantile paralysis epidemic, and its intrusion into several Hudson valley towns have manifested the wisdom of the precautionary measures taken for its exclusion by our local board of health.

It would be a tragedy if a single little life was destroyed, or a life made useless by the visitation of the disease, because of official neglect or civic indifference.

It is an undeniable truth that most diseases find readiest victims in the growing population. The present epidemic is seemingly an exclusive attack upon childhood, and it calls for every parent and every lover of children to employ every resource that will prevent the germ from exercising its deadly power.

Any precaution that will tend to check its growth is in the interest of the public good. The health officials are charged with the tremendous responsibility of preventing infection or contagion, and our citizens have the right to the remedial or cautionary statutes that they are able to frame.

Parents who have prevented their children from attending assemblies or gatherings where liability to infection is so patent, are to be commended for their good judgment.

It is regrettable that even attendance at church, which is the conscientious obligation of our Catholic children, may become an occasion of contracting the disease, and particularly by the presence of those who come from areas of infection. Yet no offense to the merciful Master is given by the little ones who for the time abstain from church in order to protect themselves from the disease, to guard others against the danger and to bring the sturdy majority little lives that later will be strong forces in Christian development.

I would ask our little Catholic children to observe the prohibitions that are made for their welfare, and until the ban is lifted to give themselves to private prayer during their usual hour of worship, pleading then and each day that our little ones may be saved from a plague that can easily count its victims by the thousands.

livan Counties.

Divides the Waters.

Situated exactly at the highest point of the divide of the Rocky mountains,
on the Crew's Nest division of the Canadian Pacific railway, in British Columbia, is a hotel. When it rains in the mountains the water which falls on the eastern slope of the hotel roof
trickles away to join a tiny rivulet, which in due time mingles its waters with the Atlantic. The water falling just beyond the ridgepole, on the other side of the roof, flows westerly and ultimately into the Pacific.

He Loved His Enemies.

James MacNeill Whistler looked upon life as upon a kind of warfare and was never so happy as when he was quarrelling with somebody. He is quoted as having said when asked if he did not have many friends: "Yes, I have many friends, and I am grateful to them, but those whom most I love are my enemies, not in a Biblical sense.
Oh, no, but because they keep one always busy, always up to the mark, either fighting them or proving them
idiots."

LIVE RIGHT TODAY.

Live this day right and meet tomorrow bravely when it this of living by the day. Any one can carry his burden, how-live sweetly, patiently, lovingly and purely until the sun goes down. And this is all that life ever really means to us—just one little day.

GIANT TRACTOR SAVES UNCLE SAM $40,000 ANNUALLY FOR FUEL BY BATTERY OF WHICH IT IS A PART.

The Holt caterpillar tractor, which can pull a 4.7 inch gun weighing 8,887 pounds at a speed of six miles an hour, weighs 4 tons and generates 45 horse power.
This picture was made at Fort Sill, Oklahoma, at a trial before the U. S. Field Artillery Board.
By using the tractor the military complement of every battery of which the tractor is a part, is reduced from 185 men to 120 men, a big saving with 650 horses as well.

REAL ANIMAL SHOW IS THIS CIRCUS

Cook & Wilson's tent show, a real old-time circus, will exhibit in Kingston on Thursday, August 10, on the circus grounds at the corner of Stephen and Derrenbacher streets. The wild animal show in connection with this circus is one of the best on the road and a specialty is made of trained wild animals that do most unusual things. There is an elephant that smokes a pipe and seems to enjoy it hugely, a chimpanzee that is a near-champion roller skater, a coal black horse with white mane and tail, and other interesting and unusual things that will doubtless entertain the audience. There will be afternoon and evening performances, street parade and concert by a military band.

TWO STRICT MANAGERS

Castigations Given Players Are Like Father's Reproofs.

Nothing They Resent So Much as Newspaper Criticism of Boys Playing for Them—Will Not Tolerate Interference.

McGraw, manager of the New York National league baseball club, is very strict with his players, but they all swear by him, for they know that he is "on the level" with them. The same thing is true of McGraw's old side partner, Hughie Jennings. They may "call" their players unmercifully, in the heat of a diamond battle for some bad mistake, but such castigations are like a father's reproofs to his sons, and bear no ill will. Let someone else offer criticism, and these two managers will fight back just like a parent would were his sons attacked.

There is nothing they resent so deeply as newspaper criticism of their players. They assume that they can conduct their own baseball households without outside interference, and as they are the parties responsible for the showing of the teams, they propose to do it.

Both are very hot-headed, and for this reason their seats on the bench are isolated and shiny—the former condition due to discretion on the part of the players, and the latter to nervous hitching about, incited by the managerial view of various plays. If some unlucky night out on the diamond happens to err, a colleague roosting close to the manager is likely to be the recipient of a spontaneous and unthinking broadside for something not his fault, simply because the manager's mind must be freed. The actual offender generally escapes, because so many things happen before he gets back to the bench that his slip is forgotten.

McGraw strives eternally to drill his baseball knowledge into the brains of his players. The thing he most abhors is a "bonehead" play. It is his goal.

Manager Hugh Jennings.

that he chides his Giants, not for the sort of errors that go into the box scores. If his team should play orthodox baseball, and yet lose the entire 154 games of a schedule, he would not whimper. But if a single game is lost through mental inability to grasp a situation, he raves. He cannot stand that.—Popular Magazine.

RESENTS JOSHING ABOUT AGE

Speaker Says Doesn't Matter If Hair Is Getting Gray, So Long as He Continues at Top Speed.

This Speaker resents being joshed about his age. He says that just so long as he continues to go at top speed it really does not matter how much the fans "ride" him because his hair is gray, but that it hurts when he is going bad. Speaker refuses to divulge his exact age, but declares that he has been gray since he was seven-teen years of age, and that he is not yet thirty. Few fans will believe that this is as young as he would like to have people believe, but, after all, what does it matter? He is playing the greatest game of his career, and until he starts to slip the fans in Cleveland will not worry about his gray hair.

One Sided Advice.

A witty young doctor, being called to attend a very pretty lady and finding little the matter with her, humorously suggested marriage as the only cure. "You are single, are you not?" she asked. "Yes, madam, but doctors only prescribe remedies; they do not take them," was the reply.—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

Mad Found Her.

A young Swede appeared at the county judge's office and asked for a license.

"What kind of a license?" asked the judge. "A hunting license."

"No," was the answer. "Aye tank aye have hunting long enough. Aye want marriage license."—Everybody's Magazine.

A Modern Slave of the Hearth.

Woman is tired of a home that is too large, where the third floor gets dirty while she is cleaning the first, of a home that cannot be left lest it should be burglarized, of a home where there is always a slate wrong or a broken window or a shortage of coal. She is tired of being immolated on the domestic hearth.—W. L. George in Harper's Magazine.

Three Fears.

For most men life is a modified reign of terror. Three fears get up with them in the morning and go to bed with them at night. They do not confess to one another that they are afraid, but their wives know.

At night, after the children have been sent to bed, they sit by the fire, the average man and his wife, and face their three fears:

First.—The fear of the loss of the job. Second.—The fear of bad health. Third.—The fear of a dependent old age.—American Magazine.

Objects to Love.

What a blessing it is to love books. Everybody must love something, and I know of no objects of love that give such substantial and unending returns as books and gardens.—Betina von Hutten.

MATTERS BEFORE THE SURROGATE

The will of Amanda M. MacIntyre of the town of Marlborough has been admitted to probate by Surrogate Gill in the surrogate's court. The testatrix gives her estate to her husband, John T. MacIntyre, and appoints him executor. The will was executed August 4, 1903, and witnessed by Marie Schuster of New York city and Albert G. Hiller and James Forrest, both of New York city. The value of the real estate is $325 and the personal property amounts to $200. Fred Dieffenbach of New York city appeared for the executor.

In the matter of the judicial settlement of Wilbur O'Bryon as administrator of the estate of Lavina M. O'Bryon, a petition to re-open the proceedings and compel a new accounting was filed by Ella Mower of Newark, N. J., a daughter, and a citation was issued returnable September 11. The petitioner claims she was induced to sign waivers when the administrator made his accounting in 1913, on the statement that it was a necessary legal formality, and that she had no knowledge at that time that the administrator had a claim against the estate for $1,300. Furthermore she alleges that he has not accounted for all the personal property. Frederick E. W. Barrow appeared for the petitioner.

A hearing was had in the matter of the judicial settlement of the account of Alexander Lockwood as administrator with the will annexed of the estate of William H. Terwilliger of the town of Saugerties and a decree was directed to be prepared. Benjamin Rowe appeared for the administrator.

HOW TO MEASURE

Do Proportions Bother You Greatly on Cooking Days?

LIQUIDS AND THICKENINGS.

This List Will Be of Real Help to the Home Baker—interesting and valuable hints about the Art of Simple Everyday Cooking.

Proportion often bothers the best of cooks to a tremendous extent. She may be glad, therefore, to have the following very useful table:

Batters, one cupful of liquid to one cupful of flour.

Milk or cake dough, one cupful of liquid to two cupfuls of flour.

Dough to knead, one cupful of liquid to three cupfuls of flour.

Dough to roll out, one cupful of liquid to four cupfuls of flour.

Stir teaspoonfuls of baking powder to one quart of flour, if no eggs are used, or one and one-half teaspoonfuls of baking powder to one cupful of flour.

One-half teaspoonful of soda or one teaspoonful of cream of tartar is about equivalent to two teaspoonfuls of baking powder.

One-half cupful of liquid yeast equals one-half dry yeast cake or one-fourth compressed yeast cake.

One cupful of liquid yeast, one dry yeast cake, or one-half compressed yeast cake to one pint of liquid if bread is raised during the day.

One-half cupful of liquid yeast, one-half dry yeast cake or one-fourth compressed yeast cake to one pint of liquid if bread is raised overnight.

One and one-half teaspoonfuls of soda to one pint of thick sour milk.

One and one-half teaspoonfuls of soda to one pint of molasses.

One teaspoonful of soda to one and one-half cupfuls of thick sour cream.

One-half cupful of cornstarch to one quart of milk for blancmange.

One teaspoonful of salt to one quart of soup stock, sauces, etc.

One-eighth teaspoonful of pepper to each teaspoonful of salt.

Two to four egg yolks to one pint of milk for soft custards.

Two to three whole eggs to one pint of milk for cup custards.

One teaspoonful of salt to one quart of water for boiling vegetables, meats, etc.

Two tablespoonfuls of flour to one cupful of liquid for white sauces and gravies.

NURSERY STOCK REGULATIONS.

New rules and regulations governing the importation of nursery stock in the United States have been issued by the Federal Horticultural board and took effect on and after July 1. In the revised regulations the most important change is the provision which makes permits for the importation of nursery stock from countries which maintain a nursery stock inspection and fire the importation of orchids and tree seeds from those which do not maintain such inspection; valid until revoked. Hitherto all permits had to be renewed each year. The other changes in the regulations are chiefly minor and matters of form.

PRUNING FRUIT BUSHES.

Currents and Gooseberries Must Be Carefully Looked After.

(Prepared by Colorado station.)

The main reason that current and gooseberry bushes do not yield satisfactory crops from year to year is due to the lack of proper pruning.

Both currents and gooseberries produce their fruit on canes that are at least two years old, the first season being generally utilized for the growing of the canes, the second for the formation of fruit buds or spurs and the third, a full crop may be expected.

These canes will bear for two and even three years, but each year after the third they begin to show a decided decline—the fruit becomes smaller and less valuable. In order to keep the production up to the standard the bush should be placed on the rotation basis—that is, each year a few new, strong shoots should be permitted to grow.

All the rest should be cut out and also each spring a like number of the oldest canes should be removed. In other words, we should grow the same number of new canes that we take out in old canes. In this way we eliminate the old and exhausted canes and keep the bushes in strong, vigorous growth.

Further, as the season progresses, all shoots beyond those that we wish to use for fruiting later on should be removed and not permitted to utilize the food supply that should go to the fruiting canes.

Sorghum Smut Treatment.

Kernel smut of the sorghum crops may be controlled by the same treatment given to kill oats smut. The treating solution is made by mixing a pint of formalin (also called formaldehyde) with thirty to forty gallons of water.

The seed may either be sprinkled or immersed. Sprinkling is easier and if done carefully is just as effective. In the sprinkling method the seed is spread out on a clean floor and the solution is applied with a sprinkling can. The seed is stirred while being sprinkled. When each seed is moistened the seed is piled up and covered tightly with wet sacks, blankets or canvas for several hours. Then it is spread out to dry. Successive lots are handled in the same way. Treated seed should not come in contact with containers that have held untreated seed unless those containers have also been treated with the solution. Sorghum smut causes a very large annual loss. It affects all of the sorghums except milo. Milo is said not to be affected by smut, and milo seed therefore does not require treatment.

The Fortune of An Architect

By ELINOR MARSH

Margaret Midway early developed a taste for art, and at twenty she decided that instead of waiting for a husband she would be the architect of her own fortune. She planned to be a decorator. Indeed, being an orphan with nothing to live on, it was necessary for her either to support herself or marry some man to support her.

That Margaret was naturally of an independent disposition is evident from the fact that she rented a cottage, in which she prepared to live alone and have her office.

One day a young man appeared on the premises and seemed to be looking for some one. Margaret went out and asked him if he was thinking of buying the property. The man looked at her admiringly, for she was a pretty girl, and replied that he was considering whether it could not be fixed up and used for residential purposes. He said that he was an architect.

"And I am a decorator," said the girl.

"Indeed! In that case we might work together."

"Do you represent the owner?" she asked.

"Yes, I'll confer with him, and if he will employ me to repair and make additions to the house and give you the decorating job we may make something out of it."

He went away, leaving Margaret to think of the matter. She paid a nominal rent and if she could make a few hundred dollars by decorating the house it would pay her to find another home. But she was thinking more of the young man than the job. He had a very pleasant way with him, and his smile was quite engaging. The next day he came back and said that he had made an arrangement with the owner for fixing up the property. He was to spend $3,000 on it and receive $500 for his services. He would pay Margaret half his fee if she would design and superintend the decorations. Margaret was very well pleased to make a fee of $250 and assented to the proposition.

The young man had brought with him drawings of the alterations to be made, and the two sat down together to consider the decorations. Margaret occupied a wing of the house which was to be turned into a kitchen and servants' rooms, but this was to be done last and she need not be disturbed till the rest was finished, and then she could move to another part of the house till the property was occupied by permanent tenants. The architect said that probably the owner would occupy it himself.

In a few days a permit to make alterations was tacked up on the front porch; then a load of building materials was dumped in the front yard; then masons and carpenters came and went to work. Margaret, meanwhile having the plans before her, arranged for the decorations. The architect came every day to see that his orders were being carried out and never failed to consult Margaret as to how this would serve or that would serve, and she never failed to ask his opinion as to what color would best go in this room or that room, and the contractor, who was there a good deal himself, wondered how the two could spend so much time over one job while he was building a dozen houses, providing everything himself and bossing each job. They would go into the living room, which was not disturbed, place the plans on a table and sit over them sometimes a couple of hours at a time.

"If that architect," said the contractor, "spends as much time with the decorator of every building he designs as with this little job I'm afraid he'll not get through many jobs."

When the contractor had finished all but the servants' quarters Margaret moved out of her little bare room into sumptuous quarters. She asked the architect when the owner would come to inspect the work and was informed that he had been there a number of times already. Margaret wondered at this, for she had not seen him. But she was informed that he was well pleased, especially with the decorations, and this satisfied her.

The work was finished at last, and architect and decorator one afternoon went through the house and grounds together.

"It's all so pretty," said Margaret. "that I feel like crying at leaving it."

"You don't need to leave it," was the reply.

"What do you mean?"

"I am the owner of this place. I came here one day to look it over with a view to fixing it up to sell it. I saw you, and it occurred to me to fix it up for myself—that is, if I could get you to share it with me. What do you say?"

This proposition was not unexpected, but the rest of it was a surprise indeed. Margaret caught her breath, the architect caught her breath, the architect of her own fortune was happy in being, as he expressed it, the fortune of the architect.

One day after they had been married some time and the wife wanted some pin money she put her arms lovingly around her husband's neck and, looking at his things at him, said:

"Dear, you never paid me for decorating our home."

"Well, I'll be fixed!" replied the husband. And he straightway drew a check for the amount.

Homemade Pillowcases.

Any one who has any spare time can devote it pleasantly and usefully by making pillowcases. They can be made much cheaper than bought and with little or no trouble. You can buy pillow tubing at 25 cents a yard. Two yards will make a pair. Draw very evenly two rows of shallow scallops around the opening. Be careful that you measure them evenly so that they will not have uneven scallops at the end. That done, crochet a double edging without hemming the case. For 55 cents you can make a handsome pair of pillow cases. If desired one or more initials could be embroidered in the center above the crocheted edge.

Barberry Sauce.

One peck of barberries, six quarts of sweet Baldwin apples, sugar and the best molasses. Pick stems off, wash and peel the apples, core and cut in quarters. If you have three bowls of berries after they are picked take two bowls of granulated sugar and one bowl of molasses. Mix, then add the apples and cook till tender. Remove, add the berries, boil hard till you can see the seeds in them, then add the apples and simmer till it is done. You can tell if it is done by cooking a little in a fat dish. If boiled too long it will candy when cold.

What Next?

Polka dot slippers. Decided beetle effects. Petticoats ruffled to the waist line. Chiffon veils with dollar sized dots. Soldier button flasks in sweater cuffs. Three tiered collars of embroidered organdie.

ONE PARALYSIS CASE REPORTED

Up to noon today but one new case of infantile paralysis had been reported to Dr. Frank A. Johnston, the local health officer, and the case reported had been brought into Kingston from Hurley. The patient is three and a half years old, Pauline Barlowe, of Jamaica Avenue, Woodhaven, L. I., and is at the home of Mrs. Smith, No. 139 St. James street. The little girl and her parents left their home on Saturday, July 15, and came to Kingston on the day boat, and went to Hurley. Last Sunday evening she was taken ill, and to be within reach of medical aid was brought to this city, where infantile paralysis developed. The case is not considered serious.

New York, July 27.—After showing weakness at the opening today when losses of from fractions to over a point were sustained, the stock market developed a better tone, with advances ranging from fractions to two points. Industrial Alcohol started at a point lower at 104, but quickly rose to 106, on the favorable annual report. Mexican Petroleum, after falling a point to 36, recovered the loss before the end of the first fifteen minutes. Crucible Steel declined to 66 1/2, and then rose to 68. Union Pacific opened 1/2 lower at 135 1/2, but quickly recovered the loss. Marine Preferred after starting 1/2 lower, rose to 85 1/2. Railways and copper stocks acted in the same manner, those stocks sustaining fractional losses at the opening and then recovering the loss before the end of the first fifteen minutes. At the first quarter hour the entire list was strong, with nearly all the leading issues ranging slightly above yesterday's close.

Aggressive selling by the trading element forced prices off sharply in the late forenoon. Much attention was paid to the railway labor situation, causing the trunk lines to weaken. Reading declined a point to 58 1/2, and fractional losses were recorded in New York Central, Erie and Union Pacific.

Steel Common moved toward a narrow range, declining from 86 1/2 to 85 1/2. Industrial Alcohol fell from 106 1/2 to 104 1/2, and Marine Preferred from 85 1/2 to 84 1/2. American Steel Sugar declined 1/2 to 85 1/2. Pressed Steel Car a point to 47. American Can 1/2 to 53 1/2, and Third Avenue a point to 62 1/2. The copper issues generally sustained fractional losses. Anaconda selling at 77 1/2, against 78 1/2 at the close yesterday. Renewed pressure was noted from the bear element outside the exchange. Money lending at 2 1/2 per cent.

There was a display of strength in many issues in the late afternoon. Sears Roebuck making a sudden advance of six points to 200 1/2. Steel Common was in better demand, advancing 1/2 to 86 1/2, and St. Paul, which sold down to 94 1/2 earlier, rallied to 94 1/2. Chesapeake and Ohio, however, was under pressure, declining 1/2 to 59 1/2. Industrial Alcohol was in good demand, selling at 106 1/2 against 104 1/2 earlier in the day.

The market closed strong. The strength in Sears Roebuck was a factor in the final dealings, that stock selling above 200, a gain of seven points in all for the day. Steel Common recovered all its loss. The general list ruled fractionally above the early low level. Trading was almost wholly professional. Government bonds unchanged; railway and other bonds irregular.

PORT EWEN.

Port Ewen, July 27.—A special meeting of the Reformed Church Tennis Club will be held Friday evening, July 28, at 8 o'clock in the basement of the church. Every member of the club is requested to attend and discuss in the meeting business of vital importance to the club. As it is rather late in the season it is absolutely necessary that the work on the court be rushed at once (if the work is to be done this year) and more interest manifested among the members. The opinion of all members on several questions is needed so that plans may be made accordingly.

Health ordinance bulletins have been placed in all public stores in our village and also the post office and it is earnestly requested that parents become familiar with the prohibitory rules regarding their children under the age of sixteen years. The health officer and all those in authority will see that these laws are obeyed. Any parent wishing to know anything further regarding this statement would do well to read them in any of the stores.

Mid-week prayer and praise service this evening at 7:30 o'clock in the Reformed and Methodist Churches. These meetings are open to adults or children over sixteen years.

Melvin Short, express messenger on the Ulster and Delaware railroad, spent Tuesday with his brother, Alanson H. Short, on Main street.

Mrs. H. B. Edwards and children of Dallas, Texas, spent a few days with Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Kruse of South Broadway on their way to their summer home on Long Island.

General Obregon's Sense of Humor.

One man seems destined to play a continually more important role as the leading military figure on the Mexican side. Villa was for all we know, is a bear; Alvaro Obregon is a coyote. Obregon is a square-jawed Spaniard, of hard complexion, very tall, with a Mexican Siesta, he lost his right arm at the battle of Agua Prieta. He has been growing fat. He doesn't speak a word of English, but he has beautiful teeth and a most engaging smile which takes the place of vocabulary. Also, he possesses that rare thing, a sense of humor. Describing the loss of his arm to an American at Tampico, he said that he had been hit by an expensive bullet and the wound was so painful that he had lost consciousness.

"It was a very efficient staff that I had," he went on to say; "when I regained consciousness, I found they had already amputated my watch and pocketbook."

After this same battle, at Agua Prieta, where he beat Villa, in November, 1915, he telegraphed the jefe politico in Tampico:

"Six thousand Villista bandits have been wiped out by 4,000 of our own."—George Marvin in the August World's Work.

The High Cost of Chasing Villa.

It is odd how fast money goes down here. With buying eggs and cigars, milk, etc., at exorbitant prices, the strikers' wages, and mess bills, I spend between $50 and $60 a month. Clothes wear out in a minute, and shoes, too. I am on my third pair of the latter. So much mountain walking where we have to lead the horses. Matches are two boxes for 15 cents, little double-ended wax matches with only about 40 lights to a box. There were some oranges and apples at the ranch here the other day, 10 cents apiece. I got a dozen oranges and ate three before I had enough. Our food is getting very tiresome. The complete list comprises fresh beef, canned beef, prunes about twice a week, hard bread or field bread (the latter only when wagons go into base), coffee, potatoes, tomatoes, beans, and bacon very seldom. Sugar is all the native lump stuff. Of course there is enough and with the packages from home we do all right. I have not lost more than 10 pounds. Some officers have lost 30 or 40, fat ones. See no prospect of moving north. All moves at best are very gradual. "Messages from Mexico" in the August World's Work.

Restraint on the Mexicans.

George Marvin in the August World's Work tells the following interesting story of Candido Aguilar, who is now secretary of foreign relations for the Carranza government, but was in 1914, when United States troops under General Frederick Funston were occupying Vera Cruz, commander of the Mexican army living between the port and Mexico City.

"In his own name, as General" of the Constitutionalist forces, he several times demanded, two years ago, the immediate retirement of General Funston and his brigade from Vera Cruz. Finally, Aguilar sent his messenger with a note to Funston which ran approximately as follows: "I am sorry to say that I am no longer able to restrain my troops and I therefore take the liberty of suggesting your immediate withdrawal."

"General Funston withdraws very poorly. But even though he cannot walk Spanish he speaks the language fluently. He turned the dispatch around and wrote across the face of it: 'My dear General: If you can't hold your own troops, allow me to help you, because I can.'—Funston."

STONE RIDGE.

Stone Ridge, July 26.—The entertainment given by the camp Fire Girls on Wednesday evening was well attended. Receipts, $17.

Mrs. L. D. Sahler has been sick but is slightly improved.

The third and fourth degrees will not be given at the Orange on Friday evening, August 4, on account of the entertainment in the Methodist Church. It is to be regretted that this entertainment comes on the same evening as does the Grange meeting as their are a number of Grangers, who would like to hear Mrs. Gilberts, but will be prevented from doing so on account of business connected with the Grange.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hornbeck, Mr. and Mrs. Quick and Edward Darley called on Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Hornbeck Monday evening.

Miss Anna Markie is ill.

The men's supper and forward movement meeting held in the Methodist Episcopal Church on Tuesday evening was well attended, despite the inclemency of the weather.

The program to be given by Mrs. G. H. Gilbert on Friday evening, August 4, in the Methodist Episcopal Church will contain something to suit all tastes. There will be a scene from Shakespeare to commemorate the Shakespearean year. There will be humor for the gay, and pathos for the sympathetic, and also something for the serious.

The music will be under the direction of Miss Marie Hetherington, which in itself assures a musical treat. After the entertainment ice cream and cake will be on sale by the Priscilla Club.

BOARD OF HEALTH ORDINANCE.

Whereas, there is a serious epidemic of influenza prevailing in the city of New York, which is spreading to other communities, and whereas, while there are as yet no cases or any indications of any cases of the disease in our village, yet the board of health deems it necessary to take proper action to prevent any epidemic of the disease in Rosendale; therefore be it enacted by the board of health:

First.—That it shall be the duty of the head of every private household and of the proprietor or keeper of each hotel or boarding house in the village to report forthwith to the local health officer the names and addresses and ages of all children under or appearing under the age of sixteen years who have come or who shall come from, or presumably from, outside the village of Rosendale who are visiting or boarding, or residing in such place under their charge.

Second.—No children under the age of sixteen years shall be permitted in any school, moving picture house or opera house in the village and all gatherings, and assemblies, excursions, picnic and entertainments of children under said ages are forbidden within the village and all children in the village under said age are forbidden to attend any Sunday school, church, excursion, picnic, entertainment or any other gathering.

Third.—Any person who violates this ordinance or order shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be liable to a fine not exceeding twenty-five dollars or by imprisonment not exceeding three months or both.

Fourth.—This ordinance shall be published in at least two newspapers and shall be effective after the first publication thereof.

Fifth.—This ordinance will remain in force until rescinded by the board of health and it will not be rescinded until all danger of an epidemic has been removed.

Report to C. V. Insbruck, Rosendale, N. Y. Phone.

Respectfully,
BOARD OF HEALTH.

A Man Hater

How She Was Converted From Her Antagonism

By ESTHER VANDEVEER

There are all sorts of persons in the world, both men and women. Those who have an abnormal development of some kind are usually called cranks. Miss Clara Bedford was one of these. There was no lun to radical for her. One of her idiosyncrasies was antagonism to man. Man had kept woman under his heel for centuries, making her what she is, or, rather, what she was, for, thank heaven, she is now every day asserting herself.

"How about children?" she was asked. "There must be fathers as well as mothers. If women hate men, where will the babies come in?"

Miss Bedford had no reply for this. Unreasonable persons don't seem to need a reply to questions that tumble their theories about their heads; their confidence in what they believe is not a whit lessened from the want of reason. They go right on just as if they had an answer and a perfectly satisfactory one.

Nevertheless, Miss Bedford was a very human being. Down in the bottom of her heart she loved an imaginary man and yearned for a child.

However, acting upon her prejudices, she arranged for her summer to get away from men. She was wealthy and bought a tract of land in New Hampshire upon which she built a cottage. There she went with servants and a few companions of her own sex, resolved that if any man trespassed on her property she would call upon the law to eject him.

She used to get up in the morning early and take long walks. One morning on one of these walks she saw on the border of her domain a tent. What was worse than the tent was a man walking away from it. Miss Bedford started at once for the trespasser, but before she reached him he had disappeared among the trees. Reaching the tent, she pulled back the canvas in front and peeped in.

What was her astonishment to see lying on a bed of boughs a child—a little girl about two years old—sleeping. One chubby arm was thrown back upon the pillow—for there was some bedding—the other was under the cover. The fine hair was tumbled, the cheeks were round and rosy, in the chin was a dimple. The lips were parted and showed a few little white teeth set in pink gums.

Miss Bedford went into the tent and approached the sleeping child. The cover at the foot of the bed was disarranged and showed five little toes. Miss Bedford could not resist a temptation to take them in her fingers. The child gave a little kick, opened its eyes and frowned at the trespasser. Then it lay down snoring, it said:

"Mamma."

Miss Bedford bent over the little girl, who put out both arms to her to be taken up. She lifted the infantile burden of flesh from the rude couch, kissing it as she did so, and, pulling its clothes about it, took a wicker chair, the only article in the tent on which to sit, and hugged the baby to her breast.

"Dindin," said the little one.

"Dindin," repeated Miss Bedford. "How am I to get you, dear little child, any dindin?" She looked about her and went on, "There's nothing here for a grown person to eat, much less for a child." There were a cup and a saucer and a spoon, but not a morsel to eat.

"Dindin," repeated the child.

"I'd like to know where that horrid man is who left you here to starve," said Miss Bedford.

"I am here," said a voice, and a man, with a cup of milk in his hand, threw back the tent flap. Miss Bedford saw that he had gone for the baby's breakfast and forgave him.

"Where did you get the milk?" she asked.

POLICE CHIEFS REELECT OFFICERS

Next Convention in Schenectady—Two Papers Read at the Morning Session, One on Detectives and One on Co-operation.

The seventeenth annual convention of the New York State Association of Chiefs of Police was brought to a close this afternoon with the re-election of all of the old officers and the selection of Schenectady as the convention city in 1917. In order to prevent the police chiefs from playing "hooky" from the sessions at the next convention a new office was added to the list, that of sergeant at arms, whose duty it will be to see to it that each chief is in seat while the convention is underway.

Two papers were read at the convention this morning; one on "Co-operation" by Chief Thomas W. Blizard of Oneonta, and the other on "Detectives" by George S. Dougherty, former Second Deputy Commissioner of Police, in New York City, which in his absence was read by Charles H. Goodrich of Binghamton.

"Co-operation."

Chief Blizard taking as his topic "Co-operation" read a very interesting paper and among other things stated: "I consider 'co-operation' an important asset in police business. It makes for efficiency. Especially does this apply to police departments, and other agencies for the suppression of crime and vice throughout the world. The co-operation between the police departments at the present time is open to very little criticism. It is practically perfect, and it is no doubt the experience of all of us that when we ask a favor from some of the other departments we invariably get it. This association is to be congratulated for being one of the principal reasons for this satisfactory state of affairs. For instance these wonderful annual conventions, which assemble the chiefs together for a business session, and a social good time, making them better acquainted, and naturally tending to make them more anxious to co-operate with one another.

"There is a movement on foot to create some kind of a state police force, which if properly organized will undoubtedly be of great benefit especially in the rural districts if it will co-operate with the already existing police departments, and local officers in the suppression of crime and the apprehension of criminals. The co-operation of the various courts with police department officials is very essential, so that after the apprehension of criminals they shall be judiciously dealt with. There are cases where youthful and first offenders are concerned where a system of parole properly enforced is undoubtedly a good thing, but there comes a time that should a criminal persist in his evil ways, it becomes the duty of the judge having jurisdiction in the case, to administer justice according to the deserts, and it is to be deplored that often times after a criminal has received a just and well merited sentence, provided he has the means to appeal his case, that the sentence is set aside not on the grounds of common sense, but usually on some technical technicality, which it would take a microscope to detect. Often times a dangerous criminal is turned loose on a long suffering public.

"One of the greatest problems of the police departments today is the regulation of traffic, which has been growing by leaps and bounds the past few years and still continues to increase. Co-operation between the various cities of the state and also between the various states through uniform traffic regulations would be of immense benefit.

"The co-operation of the general public with the police is not as satisfactory as it might be. The average citizen hates to be drawn in as a witness in a criminal proceeding. We have all been approached by him at various times with complaints of a more or less serious nature, and he invariably winds up by saying such and such a situation ought to be cleared up, but whatever you do don't get my name mixed up in it. 'If the public would be more willing to co-operate with the police and instead of making complaints and allegations on the outside would go to the proper authorities with them it would be a great help.

"Detectives."

Detective Dougherty's paper among other things contained the following: It has always been considerable of a study to me how few people there are who are skillful, clever, trained detectives, who understand every branch of this interesting and fascinating profession.

Among the police detectives we sometimes find the individual assigned, not for his fitness but on account of political affiliation. The flat-footed bone-head who imagines he knows more than Solomon and who criticizes every one except himself. In a competitive examination he would last about as long as an icicle in Hades; when the good Lord handed out intelligence, tact, skill, wit and cleverness his envelope contained neither dust.

We also have the police detective whose total stock in trade—a wonderful acquirement, by the way—is his knowledge of professional criminals, their associates, etc., and the police detective whose success are usually acquired through informants or persons of the underworld. This type of man is in a class by himself in his peculiar line and is invaluable as a detective to any municipality because he usually procures through these informants information that the most diligent and intelligent investigation might not develop. How often have we come in contact with the detective who has knowledge of the professional thieves' and their associates who can procure confidential information and who at the same time can perform all the other duties expected of the detectives of today?

I refer to the individual who can thoroughly investigate the homicide, the forgery, the swindle, the tracing of an important fugitive, who understands the value of clues, finger impressions, minute descriptions, handwriting, characteristics, as a society, etc., a deductor, who from the history of the crime as procured, can practically determine the character of the man who committed the crime, where the criminal may be located, etc. The detective who familiarizes himself with the methods and tendencies of the professional, the regularities and characteristics of the foreign born criminal, their motives for the commission of serious crimes, etc.

While it is possible to train almost to perfection a novice to become a successful detective, I have always considered that certain men are peculiarly adapted for this work, but those so adapted should be possessed of many rare qualifications, courage ranking first, followed by honesty, an intense desire for the work, ability, quick thinking, rare judgment, diplomacy, and even disposition, persistence, fairness, last but not least, a full knowledge of the law, and what evidence consists of. The brilliant detective is one who possesses initiative, in other words, who knows what next to do without instruction from another. One who will work agreeably with his fellow detectives. There is too much of a disposition on the part of the average detective to trust to memory, in that he is not sufficient thorough in making memoranda as he proceeds with his investigation, carefully noting dates of occurrences, endeavoring to get at the exact time a crime is committed, making careful note of the slightest and minutest detail which may lead to discovery of the perpetrator of a crime—not unnecessary thoroughness.

I am a great believer in the short route, the quick thinker can decide upon the least action to take which would result in the quick apprehension of the criminal, whereas the uninitiated and slow investigator might linger at least temporarily so the arrest of the perpetrator of a crime. Too much seeking of clues instead of not enough searching for the fugitive, if there is any direct line to work upon, adds the crook in getting farther away from the scene of the crime and sometimes deters arrest.

In these days the police in every locality are confronted with a condition that a few years ago did not exist, in that criminals can evade pursuit, temporarily at least, by making good their escape in motor cars, trolley lines, etc., instead of using railroads, steamship lines, etc. The individual who knows the perpetrator of the crime should accompany the detective searching for the criminal.

One of the necessary requisites of the detective who gets results is a large circle of acquaintances. The fair and square detective who is not over zealous to convict unless he is morally certain of the guilt of the criminal arrested, makes much more progress than does the detective with the narrow minded, selfish ideas.

I do not believe there is any more reprehensible practice than the so-called hounding of criminals after they have paid the penalty for their crimes.

Much has been said and written about the so-called "third degree." There is no greater crime than the assault or torturing of a prisoner to procure evidence. In my thirty years of successful detective work have never tolerated and, whenever I had the slightest idea that inhuman methods were being resorted to, to procure so-called confessions and information, have taken steps to punish those engaged in and prevent similar occurrences.

Take a patrolman from the ranks occasionally and give him a trial at detective duty. If he improves on the duty he is best adapted to. Fortunately great progress is being made in the education of the detective in schools of instruction in the larger police departments embracing a thorough understanding of investigation, finger impressions, etc.

Both papers were ordered placed on file among the records of the convention.

No More Else Book.

The convention then took up the subject of whether it should enter into a five year contract at $8,000 with a publishing house for the printing of the Blue Book. A resolution advocating the discontinuing of printing the official blue book caused considerable discussion, but it seemed to be the general expression of opinion that the printing of the book be discontinued, and when the matter was placed to a vote it was unanimously carried.

Chief Bell Wrote.

Chief William C. Bell of Auburn wrote stating that he was very sorry he was unable to attend the convention, as it was the first one in thirteen years he had been unable to attend. The communication was filed.

Not to be Dressed Alike.

Chief James J. Long of Little Falls introduced a resolution advocating the adoption of a uniform police coat in the state.

POLICE FOUR—Chief Hyatt spoke against the proposition, and said that he did not think it wise to adopt such a resolution as he had decided opinions on the uniform he wanted his men to wear and other chiefs undoubtedly had opinions of their own also.

After some further consideration of the resolution Chief Long amended it to read that the convention recommended it to the chiefs throughout the state.

The coat which Chief Long wanted adopted universally as the one to be worn by the policemen throughout the state was on exhibition at the convention.

Uniform Traffic Ordinance.

The committee on recommendations reported that it recommended a uniform traffic ordinance throughout the state.

The recommendation was favorably received by the chiefs, who believed that a uniform traffic ordinance would be of benefit to all residents in the state. The recommendation was the carrying out of a suggestion made by Secretary Hugo at the banquet. Chief Hyatt said that if Mr. Hugo's attention was called to the adoption of the resolution by the association, that undoubtedly the secretary of state would have it introduced in the legislature as a state law.

The resolution was put to vote and unanimously carried, and the secretary was instructed to notify Mr. Hugo of its passage.

No Official Paper.

The committee also recommended that the Police Monthly be named as the official paper of the association.

This came in for considerable discussion. Chief Hyatt spoke strongly against the adoption of the recommendation.

Chief J. Allan Wood also spoke against its adoption, and said that he believed the paper was a good one, but that the convention should not go on record as adopting it as the official paper.

When put to a vote the recommendation was lost.

To Have Official Badge.

Chief Hyatt of Albany called attention to the official badge of the New Jersey Association, and said he believed it would be a good idea if the association adopted a badge.

After some discussion the matter was referred to Chief Hyatt with power to order 100 badges. The probable cost to be about $1.50 each.

Chiefs Play Hooky.

Chief James Donovan of Portchester said that he would like to have the constitution and by-laws of the association amended to include the office of sergeant at arms among the list of officers to be voted for before the convention adjourned. He said that at every convention many of the chiefs played hooky from the sessions and he glanced around the room where only about half of the members of the association had gathered for the closing session.

His suggestion was greeted with a smile by the other chiefs present, but when it was put to a vote it was unanimously carried.

Pension Fund Question.

Chief Samuel D. Gibson of Watervliet advocated that each chief in the association take up the question of a pension fund for police in cities of the third class in the state with his assemblyman and senator and urge that an act of legislature create such a provision.

His suggestion came in for general discussion and it was brought out that there were cities of the third class which already had pension funds, and it seemed as if the general expression of opinion that was up to each individual city to see that such a provision was enacted, and not take it up as a state-wide issue.

Chiefs Should be Protected.

Chief Brown advocated that the state civil service rules should be amended to take in cities of the third class. He said that under the present law a city of the third class could remove its police chief for political or other reasons and the removed chief could not apply to the state civil service for reinstatement. By placing the third class cities in the same class under civil service as cities of the first and second class, a police chief would be protected in his position.

Considerable discussion also followed that suggestion.

No action was taken on either Chief Gibson or Chief Brown's suggestions.

Officers Elected.

The following officers were re-elected: President, Edward J. Singleton, of Watervliet.

Vice president, John T. Manion, of Herkimer.

Secretary and treasurer, James L. Hyatt, of Albany.

Sergeant at arms, G. O. Bush, of Tuxedo.

James J. Long was elected a member of the board of governors in place of C. F. Evans for a term of three years.

The committee on nominations whose report was unanimously adopted was composed of Chiefs James W. Rymer, James J. Lane and James J. Long.

Schenectady Gets Convention.

Schenectady was selected as the convention city in 1917, and Chief Rymer of Schenectady assured the convention that a good time would be had in 1917.

Favor State Constabulary.

Before an adjournment a resolution offered by Chief Blizard that the convention go on record as favoring the establishment of a state constabulary to work in conjunction with the police departments in the state, was adopted.

The Law Committee.

President Singleton announced the appointment of the law committee as follows: Chief John P. M. Coach of Middletown, Chief Fred W. Packard of Amsterdam, Chief Joseph M. Quigley of Rochester, Chief

J. Allan Wood of Kingston, and Charles H. Goodrich of Binghamton.

Adjourn for Lunch.

After adopting resolutions thanking Mayor Canfield, Chief Wood, the police board and others who had made the convention a success, the convention was declared adjourned and the delegates were entertained at lunch in the lower corridor of the city hall.

To West Point.

Later in the afternoon the delegates and friends went to West Point on a special train and viewed the dress parade of the cadets. They will return at 8:25 o'clock this evening, and the convention with delegates and friends will be entertained at moving picture show.

Convention a Success.

The convention has been one of the most successful ever held and all who attended were high in their praise of the entertainment furnished, and the good will of the city as expressed during the past two days.

Previous to adjournment Wednesday afternoon, Chief J. Allan Wood read a carefully prepared paper dealing with problems of the police with respect to military movements and the recent mobilization. In brief, the chief advocated the state rural police system as an invaluable auxiliary to the city and village police forces, the new body to supplant the constables and to be engaged in patrol duty through the rural townships of the state as provided in the legislation which failed of passage at Albany last year.

Some discussion followed the paper, most of the speakers favoring Chief Wood's suggestions, although Chief James W. Rymer of Schenectady feared that friction would result. In reply Chief Wood cited the co-operation between New York city reservoir police and the county and city police authorities.

A credentials committee named by President Singleton is composed of Charles McCabe of Poughkeepsie, Chief John Jameson of Cohoes, and Chief Rymer of Schenectady.

This committee has under consideration the matter of making the Police Monthly the official publication of the association and other resolutions.

Resolutions were passed approving of the work of the Safety First Federation of America and its objectives in the way of improved and uniform traffic rules.

New members received into the association at this meeting are: Frank A. Carman, Canastota; John A. Curry, Niagara Falls; Thomas Moth, Beacon; John J. O'Brien, Watervliet; Fred W. Quandt, Dunkirk; James W. Schofield, Cohoes; John Martin, Buffalo; W. P. Hennessy, New York Central Railroad police, Buffalo; Daniel Frutiger, Endicott; Walter J. Weir, Saranac Lake; E. M. Van Buren, Bronxville.

Following adjournment of the opening session, the ride around the reservoir was taken.

STORM DAMAGE AT HIGH FALLS

Brook Itan Through Jacob Snyder's House and Roads in the Vicinity are Badly Washed Out.
A storm having the proportions of a cloudburst, which in fact it resembled, broke over High Falls about noon on Wednesday and for three quarters of an hour rain fell in quantities greater than the oldest inhabitant can recall ever having fallen before.
The house of Jacob Snyder, situated on the low ground at the foot of the hill where the church stands, was almost washed from its foundations. A brook runs through the property and with ordinary rains the stream never has caused any damage except occasionally to wash away some part of the banks.
The brook became blocked quickly after the rain began falling on Wednesday and before the storm had reached its height had overflowed the banks. It continued to rise and swept over the Snyder property. The house was directly in its path and water ran in the front door and out of the back. Within a short time the house was entirely surrounded by water, and the entire lower floor was covered to a depth of several feet, the family being compelled to take refuge on the second floor.
The water continued to rise for some time after the rain had ceased, and it was more than an hour afterward before the family could leave the place. Later in the afternoon they moved out of the house.
The storm caused a large amount of damage to the roads in the vicinity of High Falls, and left many highways suffered damage as well as the ordinary dirt roads, although the latter suffered more severely because they are not well drained. The streets of High Falls were covered with water, which ran down the highway from the hill where the Ontario & Western station is situated in such force that many residents were frightened at the prospect of having their houses washed into the creek.

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)
New York, July 27.—Ty Cobb is confronted with the mightiest task of his career in his attempts to win the 1916 batting championship of the American League. The chances seem to be against him for the first time since he flashed into view as a clouting phenom.
In most of the other years, Ty led the parade at this time of the summer. Ty had a little "velvet" so to speak. But he hasn't any now. In the bygone days he could fall into a short slump and continue to rule even though his margin dwindled in the meantime. But now he is something close to 40 points behind the leading Speaker—a terrible gap.
But what counts largest against Ty is the fact that he must overhaul two men to reach the crest—Speaker and Jackson. Both are thundering along. In other years Ty had only one real rival after mid-summer. All that was necessary to win the championship was for him to beat out that one man. Now he must beat two. It's much easier, you know, to win a two horse race than it is to win in a three-entry field.
Cobb Must Not Slump.
Speaker may slump, so may Jackson. But it is unlikely that both will do so violent slumping. But even if they should, isn't it just as likely that Ty will slip too? If either Jackson or Speaker bump into a batting vacuum they have enough "velvet" to protect them for a reasonable time from being overtaken by Ty. But the fiery Georgian must race at breakneck speed from now on until the finish line is reached, he dare not slump. If he does his chances of leading the American League for the tenth successive year will go glimmering.
And even should he slip along at a whitened rate, isn't it just as possible for either Jackson or Speaker—or both—to meet the challenge, watch Cobb slip for him, and thus, with the lead they now have, beat him to the crown?
Unless Cobb hits from now on at the most terrific clip in his career, it seems unlikely that the official returns will show him elected to the championship's office for the tenth successive time, unless Speaker and Jackson skid ingloriously.
Wamby Detoured.
Billy Wambsgans went to Concordia College, in St. Louis, for the purpose of studying for the ministry. But now, instead of devoting himself exclusively to saving souls, he is saving games for the Indians by his fine playing around the second bag.
Ebbets "Penny Wise," Pound Foolish.
If the Dodgers fail to win the pennant this year it will be due in a large measure to their weakness at short, and to Charlie Ebbets's refusal to pay real money for a first class man.
Ollie O'Mara is too erratic as a leader and too weak as a hitter to be on a championship team. Ivan O'Connor, the substitute, bashed some good games early in the year, but since has slipped to the mediocre.
The Dodgers have lost more games this season because of slumping in the shortstop than through any other cause. Ebbets has had several chances to pick up an experienced man who are superior to O'Mara and Eison—but those players cost money. And Ebbets surely goes hate to part with the coin when he gets it.
The sage who once remarked "Penny wise, Pound foolish," probably had Ebbets in mind. $10,000 to $20,000 for a shortstop right now probably would mean a pennant and a slice of the world series melon, which would total quite a bit beyond the cost of three or four shortstops.
Many Changes in Leadership.
Every team but the White Sox and Athletics has led the American League procession since the season began. Perusal of the "standing of clubs" since the barrier arose in April, shows that the leadership shifted 20 times from April 12th to July 18th. Here are the changes:
April 14—Boston, St. Louis, Washington.
April 15—Boston.
April 16—New York.
April 17—Boston.
April 18—Boston and New York.
April 19—New York.
April 20—Boston.
April 21—Boston and Detroit.
April 22—Boston.
April 23—Boston and Detroit.
April 24—Boston and Detroit.
April 25—Washington.
April 26—Cleveland.
April 27—Washington.
April 28—Washington and Cleveland.
June 1—Cleveland.
June 2—Washington.
June 3—Cleveland.
June 4—Cleveland and Detroit.
June 5—Cleveland.
June 6—New York.
June 7—Cleveland.
June 8—Cleveland.
June 9—New York.
June 10—Cleveland.
June 11—Cleveland.
June 12—Cleveland.
June 13—New York.
Shawkey's Great Feat.
Yankee rosters are claiming a record for Bob Shawkey because of one of his stunts while pitching against the Indians a week or so ago. Shawkey fanned the side—Smith, Gaudin and Chapman—in the eighth. That in itself is not extremely praiseworthy but the big fact is this: Each strike-out was earned one; each batter swung three times at the ball. None had a called strike and none of the balls was fouled off.
Thoughtful Husband.
A New Yorker tells of a married couple he observed at a county fair in Ohio. They found themselves in the center of quite a crowd near one of the amusement booths and the husband addressed his wife in this wise: "I say, dearie, I think you'd better give me the lunch bucket. Don't you see, we are apt to lose each other in this crowd?"

Matty came, saw and conquered. But random at the Polo Grounds was rooting for the "Old Master" to trim his ex-boss, John McGraw.
The Braves and Cubs are fighting all the way. It was the Braves' turn yesterday. Each team made two hits, but the Braves got both of theirs in the eighth for the lone tally of the game.
The Yankees slid a little more. The White Sox applied the white wash.
The Red Sox were better hitters than the Indians and pulled up within half a game of the Yankees.
One run in two games was all the Athletics could get in the clash with the Browns.
The Cardinals were not easy for the leading Dodgers. Fifty-five was the result.
The Pirates and Phillies also split even. Alexander won as usual.
The Tigers are still in the hunt. Two hits and an error gave them the game in the tenth, even though the mighty Johnson hurled for the Nationals.
WEST PARK.
West Park, July 27.—As the Peripathetic Philosopher goes his rounds he finds that many visitors are enjoying our very pleasant neighborhood. Mr. and Mrs. Covert had visitors over Sunday, also Mr. and Mrs. Richard Atkins. The latter entertained Mrs. Tanner and son from Pleasant Valley.
Miss Dorothea Schickie has a lady visitor from Saranac Lake.
Mrs. Weingart and daughter, Mrs. Kennedy of New York were at Ascension rectory from Wednesday until Saturday.
Miss Gretchen Schickie is visiting her aunts at Chatham, on Cape Cod, Mass.
Edward Dick is visiting his brothers in Schenectady. His sister-in-law, Miss Astrid Jackson, accompanied him.
Miss Margaret O'Brien is visiting her mother in Canada.
Miss Annie Andrews is also enjoying her annual vacation.
The Aphrodite, Col. O. H. Payne's beautiful yacht, came up the river on Monday evening.
Mrs. Percy Ackert and Mrs. Grover Leight with their children are visiting relatives in Putnam.
Mr. Bock of Poughkeepsie was kept pretty busy on Tuesday carrying for the pianos of the neighborhood. The burial of Frankie Constant, youngest child of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Constant, took place Tuesday afternoon at Highland.

Mrs. Rose Nagal of New York city is stopping with Mrs. Gruberg for a month.
The sympathies of our community are with Mrs. Adam Hutton and sons in the loss of her life long companion, whom were called to follow to the cemetery at Hurley on Sunday. Adam Hutton was a well-known man in this section of the country, where he had spent his entire life. At the age of 17 he enlisted in the army at the call of President Lincoln and served with distinction until the end of the war when he came home, after being mustered out of service, but army life had appealed to him so strongly that a year later he re-enlisted in the heavy artillery, and in July, 1868, was made a corporal. Shortly after this appointment he met with an accident by the premature explosion of a gun which shot away his hand. He was then discharged and pensioned when he returned to Ulster county and married. A wife, several children, grand children and great grand children survive him. The funeral was in charge of Undertaker Comstock, the Rev. A. H. Haynes officiating at the house and Chaplain Drake at the grave.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

The Up-to-Date Co.'s Store WILL BE CLOSED WEDNESDAY, AUG. 2

to adjust and mark down its entire $82,500 stock of summer merchandise for the Final Sale which begins THURSDAY MORNING, AUGUST 3d, at 9:30 o'clock.

Despite the high market prices on all merchandise we are compelled to close out our enormous stock during the month of August. We give three reasons:

First--Our iron-clad rule is not to carry over one dollar's worth from one season to another, irrespective of the cost. You all know this.

Second--The next important reason is the frequent change of styles, which makes it imperative for us to dispose of spring and summer stock, irrespective of the great losses we sustain.

Third--We want our patrons who have been regular customers to realize that during this Final Sale they get something worth while as an appreciation of the patronage in the past.

Past records during our final sales corroborate every statement we make above.

The Sale Starts Thursday, August 3d, at 9:30. Watch for our big advertisement and also our windows.

WHEREAS, a serious epidemic of Polio-myelitis, commonly known as Infanile Paralysis, is now extant in the city of New York, and spreading to other communities; and

WHEREAS, it is reported that two cases of such disease have occurred within the town of Plattkill, from which death has resulted;

NOW THEREFORE, pursuant to the power vested in the Board of Health of the town of Plattkill, by virtue of Section 21 of the Public Health Law, and by other parts of amendment within the said statute in such cases made and provided,

First--That it shall be the duty of the head of every private family or household, or of the proprietor or keeper of each hotel, boarding house or lodging house within the town of Plattkill, to report immediately to the local health officer, the names, addresses and ages of all persons who are coming, or who shall hereafter come, from or potentially from without the town of Plattkill into the said town, or who are visiting, boarding, lodging or residing in such place under their charge.

Second--That all persons who shall be coming within the bounds of the town of Plattkill from without the bounds thereof, for the purpose of visiting, boarding, lodging or residing in such town, shall, subsequent to their coming within the bounds of the said town, remain and be isolated from the general public upon the premises where they may be visiting, boarding, lodging or residing, for a period of at least three weeks, and all such persons shall be prohibited during such period, from visiting any other premises, or places or from attending any theater, moving picture, opera house or any gathering or assembling within said town, or from attending any Sunday school, church, excursion, picnic, entertainment or other gathering, or from visiting any ice cream parlor or place or store where ice cream, soda water or other beverages or articles of food are sold or dispensed.

Third--No children under the age of sixteen years shall be permitted in any the town of Plattkill, by virtue of Section 21 of the Public Health Law, and by other parts of amendment within the said statute in such cases made and provided,

First--That it shall be the duty of the head of every private family or household, or of the proprietor or keeper of each hotel, boarding house or lodging house within the town of Plattkill, to report immediately to the local health officer, the names, addresses and ages of all persons who are coming, or who shall hereafter come, from or potentially from without the town of Plattkill into the said town, or who are visiting, boarding, lodging or residing in such place under their charge.

Second--That all persons who shall be coming within the bounds of the town of Plattkill from without the bounds thereof, for the purpose of visiting, boarding, lodging or residing in such town, shall, subsequent to their coming within the bounds of the said town, remain and be isolated from the general public upon the premises where they may be visiting, boarding, lodging or residing, for a period of at least three weeks, and all such persons shall be prohibited during such period, from visiting any other premises, or places or from attending any theater, moving picture, opera house or any gathering or assembling within said town, or from attending any Sunday school, church, excursion, picnic, entertainment or other gathering, or from visiting any ice cream parlor or place or store where ice cream, soda water or other beverages or articles of food are sold or dispensed.

Third--No children under the age of sixteen years shall be permitted in any the town of Plattkill, by virtue of Section 21 of the Public Health Law, and by other parts of amendment within the said statute in such cases made and provided,

First--That it shall be the duty of the head of every private family or household, or of the proprietor or keeper of each hotel, boarding house or lodging house within the town of Plattkill, to report immediately to the local health officer, the names, addresses and ages of all persons who are coming, or who shall hereafter come, from or potentially from without the town of Plattkill into the said town, or who are visiting, boarding, lodging or residing in such place under their charge.

Second--That all persons who shall be coming within the bounds of the town of Plattkill from without the bounds thereof, for the purpose of visiting, boarding, lodging or residing in such town, shall, subsequent to their coming within the bounds of the said town, remain and be isolated from the general public upon the premises where they may be visiting, boarding, lodging or residing, for a period of at least three weeks, and all such persons shall be prohibited during such period, from visiting any other premises, or places or from attending any theater, moving picture, opera house or any gathering or assembling within said town, or from attending any Sunday school, church, excursion, picnic, entertainment or other gathering, or from visiting any ice cream parlor or place or store where ice cream, soda water or other beverages or articles of food are sold or dispensed.

Third--No children under the age of sixteen years shall be permitted in any the town of Plattkill, by virtue of Section 21 of the Public Health Law, and by other parts of amendment within the said statute in such cases made and provided,
